

Messrs. Pechin & Frailey.

GENTLEMEN, I have of late flattered my mind to retropect upon the rise and progress of this country, particularly since the independence was effected, and am willing to acknowledge, through the medium of your very circulating paper, that to contrail its present situation, with respect to population, virtue, arts & sciences, wealth and tranquility, civility, &c. with the depressed and disorganized state, that we were in, at, and for some time after. The revolution has excited sensations truly astonishing, accompanied with gratitude (perhaps) proportioned thereto: it is already proved that our ingenuity is equal to what our fellow creatures are possessed of in Europe; hence it follows, that the practical part is all which is wanting, for establishing manufactures, institutions, &c. and among the latter, no one contemplated, has struck my mind more pleasingly than the Botanic, which has been repeatedly hinted at—an institution which is well calculated for the improving and expanding the mind. The climate is very favorable to the cultivation of every valuable root, herb or flower which can prove useful or ornamental to a Botanical Garden; I should therefore have no doubt, but that if a candidate was to tender the community his services, whose skill was fully competent, the citizens would be willing to aid in the prosecution thereof—indeed, in all probability, the institutions already existing for the promotion of agriculture, arts and sciences would gladly contribute towards its support. GENEROUSITY. P. S. The several editors are requested to reinsert the above.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.

In the ship Martha, arrived this morning from Malaga, came out as commander, Richard O'Brien, Esq. late Consul General for the United States, at Algiers—His lady and family accompanied him: and we are happy to add, all enjoy excellent health.

LATE FROM INDIA.

The supercargoes of the Indiamen, arrived in town this morning, inform us, that General Lake, had lately obtained several brilliant victories over the Mahrattas. In one of the engagements Gen. Frazier lost his life. About the 15th December, information was received at Calcutta, that the Mahrattas, under Gen. Holkar, were completely surrounded, and that the progress of the English arms had become so successful as to promise a speedy termination to the war.

The details of these events are given in Calcutta papers, which remain on board these vessels. The perusal of these we have been politely promised.

In addition to, and corroborative of the above, we have been favored with the following extract of a letter from a gentleman of the first respectability in India, to his friend in this city—The newspapers referred to in this letter, have been obligingly promised to the Editor of this Gazette; and the intertelling extracts shall appear hereafter:

CACUTTA, Dec. 14.

"For political matters I refer you to the papers, by which you will find, that we have had some desperate fighting in this country, but I believe we have now got the better of all the native powers, who at one time were about to combine against us—Generals Lake, Wellesly, and Frazier, have behaved like Heroes and indeed to have all our troops.

"Holkar has given us much trouble, but he has met with such a check in the last business, that he will never be able to do us much harm. I think we shall soon have a permanent peace, at least inasmuch as we shall have nothing to apprehend, from the native powers, who now they got under will be kept from rising again in any force.

"Marquis Wellesly has proved himself a clever fellow, in every sense of the word. Had he not been our Governor General, we should probably have lost this country."

FIRE!—Last night between 11 and 12 o'clock, a fire broke out in a stable situated in Branch-street, between 3d and 4th streets,—owing to a timely discovery, a very plentiful shower of rain, and the vigilance of the citizens, who immediately assembled, it was extinguished without effecting any material injury. This is the second instance, in the present week, of a fire in that neighbourhood, and from various circumstances which have come to our knowledge, little doubt can be entertained of their being the effect of design.

There are further rumors of advices from India of great battles fought and great achievements of the British arms against those of Holkar—whom in the usual spirit of accurate intelligence, some of our very wise and perspicacious editors call general Holkar. That a great parade may be made in the Calcutta papers, we make not the least doubt—nor is it at this time of day a strange affair to hear that the Mahrattas of Hindustan are valorous and intrepid—but men of correct information are not to be censored out of their understandings by the artful stratagems of wily statesmen—we are told that had not Marquis Wellesly been governor general, Britain would have lost the country—this stage trick, may be explained by a reference to the detected correspondence published sometime ago; simple soul the Marquis Wellesly, has never been within 1000 miles of a Mahrattah fabre unless it was brought him as a curiosity to Fort William; and as to his knowledge of the policy of India, he must depend for that on men who have seen the service—Wellesly, like Cornwallis, is well known to have not only been in the leading strings of Mr. G. H. Barlow (a man of real knowledge and talents, and of as much probity as can be expected in his station) but that even the minutes in council which every member of the Indian supreme government is bound to deliver on record, are the productions of that gentleman. Lord Grenville advised Wellesly not to make any determination as to the party he should join; he has, as the failors say, "laid an anchor to windward," by magnifying the movements against Holkar into matters of immense moment.

There are four principal Mahrattah powers in Hindustan, their consequence may be estimated from the population of their territories.

MAHRATTAH POWERS:

Table with 2 columns: Name (Poonah, Scindeah, Bonselah, Holkar) and Population (6,000,000, 11,000,000, 7,000,000, 5,000,000).

There are about 14 or 15 millions more of Mahrattas under numerous petty chieftains, one half of which at least are dependant on the Paishwa: but the population of Holkar's dominions is the least of all the effective chiefs. Now all the rest of the Mahrattas, but Holkar, are in alliance with the British; and the country of Holkar is the least productive either in cultivation or arts, of any of the Mahrattas.

[Since writing the above we have received Calcutta papers, which contain details of the actions, here so much spoken of; and they only corroborate what we have said above. The actions fought have been indeed desperate and severe in human slaughter, but by no means of the vast consequence on the general policy of India attributed to them. Such events have constantly occurred and must occur until the natives are totally deprived of power or spirit to resist. [Aurora.]

The city of Kief, in Russia, has been fixed upon for the residence of the wandering Louis XVIII. Richard the III. of England is represented as offering "a kingdom for a horse;" King Louis would doubtless give twenty horses for a kingdom at present, if he could get one.

The title-makers of Europe have at length definitively fixed the title of the emperor of Germany and Austria; it is couched in these terms, "His Imperial Majesty. Royal and Apostolic, the Emperor of the Romans and Austria." This, by the way, is rather a sinking kind of a title; "and Austria," sounds rather insignificant after "His Imperial Majesty Royal and Apostolic, the Emperor of the Romans and Austria."

It is reported of lord chief justice Holt, who had been very wild in his youth, that being once upon the bench at the Old Bailey, a fellow was tried and convicted of a robbery on the highway, whom the judge remembered to have been one of his former companions.—Curiosity induced him to enquire the fortune of his old associates and asked him what was become of Tom such a one, and Jack such a one. The fellow feigned a deep sigh, and replied, "Ah, my lord, they are all hanged, but your lordship and I."

No apprehensions were entertained of the blacks taking the place, as they had plenty of ammunition and men, and every precaution was taken to put the place in the best state of defence possible. All the vessels were ordered out of the port, to leave no hopes for retreat. The women, children and property, were to a large amount sent to Porto Rico, some of which was intercepted by the British and sent to Jamaica. Captain F. was boarded by the Stork sloop of war, coming out of St. Domingo, but finding no money on board, suffered him to proceed. There was no blockade when the Sally sailed.

PROPOSALS

FOR PRINTING BY SUBSCRIPTION, LECTURES ON THEOLOGY, BY CHARLES NISBET, D. D. Late President of Dickinson College, in Carlisle, Pennsylvania. To which will be prefixed AN ACCOUNT OF THE LIFE AND CHARACTER OF THE AUTHOR. By the Rev. Dr. SAMUEL MILLER, Of the city of New York.

To those who are acquainted with the character of the late Dr. Nisbet, no recommendation will be necessary to engage their patronage of the publication above proposed: it is well known, that his profound erudition, his eminent talents, and his fervent piety, rendered him, for many years, a distinguished light in the church of Scotland, and a principal leader of what is there denominated the Orthodox Party. His high reputation induced the trustees of Dickinson college to call him from the continent, and honorable sphere of usefulness which he occupied in his native country, to take the presidency of that institution. This important station he held for near twenty years, with a degree of honor to himself, and of advantage to the seminary under his care, which those who have attended to the progress of American literature well know. The Lectures now proposed to be published, were delivered at Dickinson college, to a select class of theological students, who heard them with so much gratification and instruction, that manuscript copies were eagerly sought after, and by a few obtained; and application was made to the venerable president, on his death bed, for his consent to have the whole laid before the public in a more correct and perfect form.

Although the body of the theological instruction, now offered to the world, was not originally formed with a view to publication, and although it did not receive the advantage of the author's last corrections; yet, unless his friends have formed a very partial and erroneous estimate of the work, it will be found to contain a rich fund of theological learning, which will abundantly repay the reader, and form a lasting monument to the honor of the author.

CONDITIONS.

I. The work will be printed in six octavo volumes, of about 500 pages each; and will be put to press as soon as a subscription offers sufficient to defray the expenses of publication.

II. It will be printed on a handsome new type and good paper, and associated with neatness and accuracy.

III. The price to subscribers will be Five Dollars a volume, in Advance, payable on delivery. A volume will be published every 2 months, after the work is put to press.

IV. Those who become subscribers for the complete work, will be entitled to a copy of the work. Subscriptions received at the Baltimore Library, and at the different bookstores.
