From the Isle of France. Captain Stone, of the ship America, who arrived at Newburyport on Saturday, in 97 days from Isle of France, informs that that place has not been blockaded; a British Squadron of one 74 and three smaller vessels were cruising round the island, but appeared well disposed towards Americans. Markets dull, and coffee extremely high. Came passengers in the America, Thomas Larkins, Esq. and all his officers: (the purser, J. Edgwick excepted) late of the East India company's ship 'Warren' sailings, which was captured on the 21st of June last, in lat. 69, 13. S. long. 46, 45, E. by the French frigate La Piedmontais, of 46 guns and 385 men, commanded by captain L. tpton. After a very warm and close action of four and an half hours, in which the Warren Hastings lost her fore and mizen masts and bowsprit, and her main mast mangled; the purser and six men killed, and eighteen wounded. The truly melancholy fate of another Salem ship is brought by captain S. and strongly points out the necessity of sufficiently arming those ships, which are intended to visit those barbarous coasts.

The Publiciste, a Paris paper, inserts a letter from Hamburg, of the 14th of September, containing, among others, the following remarks: "When the King of Sweden makes manifestations, or preparations for war against France, Europe is quiet; not a town looks upon itself as menaced—

France, one is astonished—one is apprehensive of the storm which she draws upon the North of Germany.—Prussia arms—What are her grievances?—What are her hopes? It is easier to find the grievances which the French government has had against that Power, and the wrongs it has pardoned.—The whole regret of the French Generals at the battle of Austerlitz, was, that the Prussians were not engaged in it.—What must not the King of Prussia have feared at that time?—His Grand Uncle, Frederick II. had not been provoked so much as the Emperor Napoleon, when, in lowering the power of Saxony, he said, "I shall find in the Elector's Palace the Treaty which binds him against me."

It is affirmed as an unequivocal fact, that a contract has been entered into with Comfort Tyler for furnishing, on the waters of the Ohio, about the beginning of October, provisions to the amount of forty thousand dollars, at the highest market prices. This is vouched by creditable men, who declare they have the information from those who have seen the contract. The fact is likewise corroborated by several persons to whom offers of purchase were made, but who declined entirely from the mysterious appearance of the business. It is affirmed as undeniable, that during the last winter Mr. Burr offered general Eaton a commission, which the latter rejected; in consequence of which, the latter gentleman, at an entertainment at which Mr. Burr was present, gave a toast to this effect—"May the arm be withered, and the head paralyzed, that shall attempt or meditate a separation of the states."

COMMUNICATION. COLONEL AARON BURR. OUR attention has been of late much excited by the publications which have appeared in the paper called the Western World: Plots and conspiracies of various kinds, have been announced in terms of such ferocity connected with details, which were the appearance of probability. Among others who have been denounced, we have lately noticed the name of Aaron Burr, Esq. late Vice-President of the United States.

It has long been the custom of many American writers, and publishers, to treat the name, character and conduct of Col. Burr with suspicion, accusation and contempt. He has been accused and denounced, as a foe to his country, to his government, and to the civil liberties of mankind; and so long and so frequently have such things been published, that no reader can be surprised to find some new accusation or charge against this distinguished character.

Under such circumstances, the name of Col. Burr has been announced as a conspirator, for the purpose of effecting a revolution, in the Western settlements and states of the union; the object of which would be to establish a separate government or empire beyond the Alleghany Mountains—and so far have these accusations been carried, that many collateral facts, of seeming importance, have been referred to and relied upon. One of these facts related to the employment of many young men of talents and distinction, who have engaged in some secret project, which they either will not, or cannot explain. Another relates to the building, or contracting for a number of boats, such as seemed useful only in a military project. A third relates to the great resources in money which Col. Burr has lately obtained, either by drafts upon merchants in Kentucky, or by his own drafts upon merchants of New-York and Philadelphia.

had granted to him; that Burr was bound to settle a considerable number of families there as one of the conditions of the grant.

Here then the whole mystery is unfolded.—Burr being unable to fulfil his contract, was fold or confederated with Lynch; Lynch was either fold to or confederated with Burr; Burr has fold or confederated with other persons, who have sufficient cash capitals to make the necessary settlements.

Having made these arrangements, it was natural for Col. Burr to engage young men of talents and enterprise, not only to become settlers but also to promote the general purpose of the plan. Young men of this description have been employed, and because the wife-ones could not discern wherefore, they have thought fit to say, that the purposes were treacherable, and that Col. Burr was not only the author but the great machine, upon which all the minor parts of this supposed treachery and conspiracy, would or did depend.

After having mentioned this part of the project, the next thing necessary was, to provide suitable boats, not merely such as would do to go down the Ohio and Mississippi; but such as would be useful in other purposes, and at the same time to afford the means of annoyance, if interrupted by Indians, or plunderers.—Boats of this description have all been provided.

Men and boats being thus engaged, there then would want nothing but money, or those articles of necessity which money would produce. According to the accounts which are published, it seems that Col. Burr has provided funds equal to 200,000 dollars. Now if all the things be true, what are the results? Plainly and simply these: Col. Aaron Burr, a man of great talents and enterprise, who has had many causes to be dissatisfied with the eastern parts of the United States, has determined to withdraw and to settle in Louisiana. He has purchased or otherwise obtained the control over large tracts of valuable unsettled lands, and has employed persons to superintend the settlement of farmers in those lands. These farmers have been or will be obtained from the Eastern States, and of course must pass down the Ohio by water, to go to the lands in question. He has provided proper boats to remove these settlers and their families, and has also provided sufficient resources in money and other articles to promote and execute the intended settlement.

All these things being connected with the name of Burr, have induced some persons to publish, and many more to believe that the whole was neither more nor less than an organized conspiracy for the purpose of separating the Western from the Eastern States; that Col. Burr was the organ and author of that great project; and that he had been urged to this act of speculative weakness or rather madness by motives of ambition or revenge.

These observations are not altogether predicated upon conjecture. There are some facts known to the writer, which induce him seriously to submit these reflections to public notice. As a very little time will explain the whole mystery, if there be a mystery, or if there be any thing more intended than has been herein suggested, to therefore it will not be proper or availing, at this time, to add other conjectures.

It will attend to the writer much satisfaction, to find not only, that to great a calamity as the dismemberment of the United States is not contemplated by any one, but very particularly indeed, will it gratify him, to find that one of such rare talents as those of Col. Aaron Burr has not sullied the lustre which is due to his name and to such exalted endowments, by designs which could not fail, to embitter the latter days of his life, and to consign his name and his fame to execration and infamy.

A FRIEND [Enquirer.] Of the Union and of Truth. RUMORS, of which the name of Aaron Burr is made the vehicle, actually swarm around us; many of them of such a complexion, that it might be criminal either to treat them with indifference, or to receive them as absolutely true. Under such circumstances, it is our duty to record them. They will inculcate vigilance and the propriety of a state of preparation for any events which may occur. Let it not be imagined that we have any doubts of the virtue and patriotism of the Western states, or apprehensions of any machinations to separate them from the union. On the contrary, we believe their affection to the union and the administration unbounded. Notwithstanding, there may be men among them who are deluded by their ambitious views, and who may form the most unpromising projects.

It is affirmed as an unequivocal fact, that a contract has been entered into with Comfort Tyler for furnishing, on the waters of the Ohio, about the beginning of October, provisions to the amount of forty thousand dollars, at the highest market prices. This is vouched by creditable men, who declare they have the information from those who have seen the contract. The fact is likewise corroborated by several persons to whom offers of purchase were made, but who declined entirely from the mysterious appearance of the business. It is affirmed as undeniable, that during the last winter Mr. Burr offered general Eaton a commission, which the latter rejected; in consequence of which, the latter gentleman, at an entertainment at which Mr. Burr was present, gave a toast to this effect—"May the arm be withered, and the head paralyzed, that shall attempt or meditate a separation of the states."

AARON BURR. We are informed that two distinguished federalists are parties to the contract for furnishing provisions on the waters of the Ohio, alluded to in our last; one of them, not long since a Senator of the United States, and the other an eminent federal contractor at Pittsburgh, is

By advices from Capt Francois, via Alexandria, information is received, that the Emperor Dessalines had been assassinated. It appears that previous to this event, he had ordered the general Capace, at Port de Paix, and General Brave, at the Cape, to be shot; which was obeyed several other, of his principal officers had also been executed previous to his death. No certain accounts of the situation of the Americans are received.
