March 4

To the Ladies and Gentlemen, Dolls and Beau of the City of Baltimore.

Shall I address you in a pathetic or a laughing way—shall your eyes weep showers, or your smiles crack with pleasing distention?
And pay for what? Why to tell you the truth—I have taken into my head to issue Proposals for publishing—what?—by the Beard of Malim-ed it shall be.

A LITTLE SATURDAY'S REPEAT,

Under the title of

SPECTACLES.

As having, in the olden time, I was at a loss how to begin my prospectus. So many have gone before me—so many have gone willy-nilly, led by some ignis fatuus—so many have failed—that by all that is beautiful and sublime, I had determined to ask yourselves how I shall address you? And believe me, Ma'am, or Sir, or Miss, or Master, this is a matter of serious consequence—for if your worship or your ladyship should happen to be on an ill humor, and any proposal should then come laughing across you, you might perchance send them to Old Nick; and again, if they should unthinkingly reach you in the fashion of a grey beard upon a go-cart, and you should be in "merry mood," you might laugh my gravity to scorn, and ask my carrier of parcels, like our wags with the countrymen, "when he had come down?"

How I should see I am in a dilemma—However, SPECTACLES the thing shall be called, say what you can; and I will try the experiment of peeping through them at you, pursues for two DOLLARS PER ANNUM—Cheap by Plutus! dog cheap! The wondrous that may be seen through them will exceed all description—and what is remarkable, they will suit all sorts of people—young and old—short sighted and long sighted—it shall contain—let me see—

But remember, as you go along—I am as serious as a moping Philosopher in this proposition—

It shall contain—in one word—Every thing that is amusing—it shall contain—foreign news, domestic news, literary news, and all sorts of news—Biography, topography—and all the orographies—Battles, murders, jakes, sermons, plays, Les-sons, love ditties, and witticisms—but above all—quizzes—yes, those beautiful, quizzical, facetious, whimsical, nonsensical quizzies, which will cure the spleen, set you all a-gog and roaring with their fun and frolic—

"You are welcome to try it before you buy it" This was the elegant motto which a schoolmaster of mine put upon his ink-bottle—and a very honest one it was—

So shall it be with my commodity—you shall try on the Spectacles before you pay for them; that is, my dear friends, you are not to pay me in advance, but just fifty American Cents of the United States currency per quarter—and after reading my first number, if you are not pleased and tickled, nay and instructed to boot, why, by the honor of a valiant Spaniard you may throw the four pages out of your window, and kick my Mercury out of doors—

Now, by the way, my noble reader, is not this a droll fashion of writing a prospectus? upon my soul it is! But one must produce something out of the hackneyed way, you know, and therefore I have attacked you in this zig-zag method, just as the painters describe their lightning—

To be serious—I mean, in fact, to publish a weekly little sheet, containing four pages of letter-press, for which I intend to make you pay TWO DOLLARS PER ANNUM, QUARTERLY. It will have, like a mince pie, a spice of many things—I make sure that you will subscribe a far who would not give two dollars per year, to be pleased once a week, and instructed into the bargain—

Yet who is to be the conductor of the Specta- cles? A tough question, by the valor of my ancestors—

But I'll tell you good folks—I am an old soldier with a wooden leg and weak eyes—a light purse—and a light heart—I am now retired from fighting, and mean to divert my old age in manufacturing Spectacles to suit all sorts and sizes of people—So you that are for encouraging me, say aye—those who refuse to patronize say no—
A person will in a few days wait upon you for your names, &c. &c.

Subscriptions will be received at the different Booksellers.
