TRUSTEE'S SALE
—OF—
VALUABLE AND HANDSOME COUNTRY
PROPERTY,
THE ESTATE OF AN INSOLVENT,
—SITUATE—
IN THE 1ST DISTRICT, BALTIMORE COUNTY.
By virtue of an order of the Circuit Court for Baltimore County, passed February 7th, 1889, in the matter of John G. McCullough, an insolvent, the undersigned, as Trustee, will offer at Public Auction, at the EXCHANGE SALESROOM, 122 E. FAYETTE STREET, Baltimore city,
On Thursday, 16th day of May, 1889,
At 1 o'clock P. M.,
ALL THAT VALUABLE FARM AND COUNTRY SEAT, lately the property of John G. McCullough, containing in the whole about 154 ACRES,
and situate about 1 mile north of Catonsville, on the Johnny Cake Road, a first-rate macadamized road, connecting with Catonsville by Ingleside Avenue, and with the Frederick Turnpike by Nunnery Lane; also with the city by the Old Frederick Road and Edmondson Avenue.
The property adjoins that of Hart B. Holton on the east, the Crosbys on the west, and nearly adjacent the famous "Ingleside."
It is situate on an elevated plateau, with a commanding view of the surrounding country, extending to the Reisterstown Pike, and can be easily divided into a number of beautiful country sites, according to the fancy of purchasers.
The soil is good, and the place well set in grass, with a fine stream of running water flowing through it.
It will be offered in 4 lots as follows:
LOT NO. 1, embracing the original purchase, contains 98¼ ACRES, MORE OR LESS,
and is the same described in two several deeds, both from John Dunn and wife to John G. McCullough, dated May 10th, 1861, and recorded among the Land Records of Baltimore County, the one in Liber G. H. C., No. 32, folio 333, the other in Liber G. H. C., No. 32, folio 335. The improvements on this lot consist of a large, handsome,
THREE-STORY FRAME MANSION HOUSE,
erected on a commanding eminence, supplied with gas and water, and with large Water Tank and Bath Room. In the rear is Carriage House, Stable, Shed, &c., with promising orchard of young fruit trees. About 500 yards further is the old Farm House of two stories with 12 to 15 rooms, and outbuildings, including large Bank Barn and Stable with accommodations for 60 head of stock. It is mostly under cultivation with fair proportion of wood land.
LOT NO 2 adjoins the above, contains
2 ACRES OF LAND, MORE OR LESS,
and is same described in deed from James Lee to John G. McCullough, dated April 25th, 1870, recorded in the Land Records aforesaid in Liber E. H. A., No. 69, folio 240. This lot faces the county road, is cleared but without improvements of value, and is subject to ground rent of $8 per annum.
LOT NO. 3 adjoins No. 1, contains
9 ACRES, MORE OR LESS,
and is same described in deed from John Peddicord, junior, to John G. McCullough, dated January 26th, 1866, and recorded among the Land Records aforesaid in Liber J. H. L., No. 47, folio 287. This lot faces the county road, is improved by small DWELLING HOUSE, and is subject to a ground rent of $36 per annum.
LOT NO. 4 adjoins No. 1, contains
44 ACRES, 1 ROOD AND 20 PERCHES, MORE OR LESS, described in a deed from John N. Carroll and wife to John G. McCullough, dated October 15th, 1870, and recorded among the Records aforesaid in Liber E. H. A., No. 68, folio 469. This lot faces the county road, is unimproved, in good state of cultivation, with fair proportion of wood land.
Terms of Sale.—½ Cash, and the balance in equal instalments at 6 and 12 months, with interest from day of sale on deferred payments, or all cash at purchaser's option. Deposit of $200 required on day of sale on lots 1 and 4 each, and $100 on lots 2 and 3 each.
☞Possession given immediately.
Property will be shown until day of sale by Mr. J. H. WELLING on the premises.
The attention of purchasers and capitalists is invited to this sale.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE.
OF VALUABLE
FARMING AND TRUCKING LANDS,
IN PATAPSCO NECK, BALTIMORE COUNTY.
By virtue of a power contained in a mortgage from William Kimmel and others to Alexander H. Schulz, dated the 15th day of September, in the year 1876, recorded among the Mortgage Land Records of Baltimore County in Liber J. B., No. 68, folios 211, &c., the undersigned will sell by Public Auction, at the COURT HOUSE, IN TOWSON, in said county,
On Wednesday, May 8th, 1889,
At 12 o'clock noon,
TWO ADJOINING PARCELS OF LAND
lying in said county, on the Trappe Road, in Patapsco Neck, about 6 miles from Baltimore and about 6 miles from Steelton, and described as follows:
Lot No. 1.
This lot is LEASEHOLD, contains
342 ACRES, MORE OR LESS,
and is the same parcel of land firstly described in said mortgage, except three and two-fifths acres thereof at the southwest corner, conveyed to T. Alvah Merritt. It is situated on Bear Creek, adjoins Lot No. 2 hereinafter described, and also adjoins the lands of George B. Graves, Charles E. Lynch, Jesse Martel, T. Alvah Merritt and others, and is now occupied by George Perkins, William Boone, C. Jewell and Charles Jacobs, as tenants of the several portions. It is subject to an annual ground rent of $773.25, payable in equal half-yearly instalments on the 15th day of March and September, which ground rent is redeemable at any time between March 15th, 1892, and September 15th, 1892 on payment of $15,465.00 and all arrears of rent, and a due proportion of the rent then accuring. The improvements on Lot No. 1 consists of FOUR DWELLINGS, with Barns, Outhouse, &c.
Lot No. 2.
This lot is in FEE SIMPLE, contains
THIRTY AND TWO-FIFTHS ACRES more or less, and comprises all that part of the parcel of land thirdly described in the aforesaid mortgage, which lies south of the centre line of the Trappe Road. It adjoins Lot No. 1, hereinbefore described, and also adjoins the lands of William B. Upp, Gotlieb Stengel and Charles E. Lynch.
There are no buildings on LOT NO. 2.
Both of the above-described parcels of land are in a high state of cultivation, and very desirable for truck farming.
Terms of Sale.—One third cash on the day of sale, balance in two equal instalments at one and two years respectively thereafter, bearing interest from the day of sale; or all cash as purchaser may elect. Taxes and ground rent to be adjusted to the day of sale, and paid out of the proceeds of sale. A deposit of $250 will be required at the sale from the purchaser of LOT NO. 1, and a deposit of $100 from the purchaser of LOT NO. 2.
A plat of the property will be exhibited at the sale, and in the meantime may be seen at the office of Mr. JOHN S. TYSON, No. 207 St. Paul Street, Baltimore.
☞N. B.—This sale was advertised for April 17th but has been unavoidable postponed to May 8th.

SONG TO THE TREES.

I.
Hail to the trees!
Patient and generous, mothers of mankind,
Arching the hills, the minstrels of the wind,
Spring's glorious flowers, and Summer's balmy tents,
A sharer in man's free and happier sense.
From early blossom till the north wind calls
Its drowsy spirits from beech-hid waterfalls,
The trees bless all, and then, brown-mantled, stand
The sturdy prophets of a golden land.

II.
Eden was clothed in trees, their glossy leaves
Gave raiment, food and shelter; 'neath their leaves
Drooping with ruby dew the flow'rets rose
To follow man from Eden to his woes.
The silver rill crept fragrant thickets through,
The air was rich with life, a violet hue
Tangling with sunshine lit the waving scene,
'Twas heaven, tree-born, tree-lulled, enwreathed in green.

III.
Where trees are not, behold the deserts swoon
Beneath the blazen sun and mocking moon.
Where trees are not, the fawny torrent leaps,
A brawling savage from the crumbling steeps,
Where once the ferns their gentle branches waved
And tender lillies in the crystal laved;
A brawling savage, plundering in a night
The fields it once strayed through a streamlet bright.

IV.
O whispering trees, companions, sages, friends,
No change in you, whatever friendship ends:
No deed of yours the Eden link e'er broke;
Bared is your head to ward the lightning's stroke,
You fed the infant man, and blessed his cot,
Hewed from your grain: without you he were not,
The hand that planned you, planned the future, too,
Shall we distrust it, knowing such as you?

V.
And then come Eden back? The trees are here
In all their olden beauty and glad cheer.
Eden but wait the lifting of the night,
For man to know the true and will the right.
Whatever creed may find ih hate a birth,
One of the heavens is this teeming earth;
"Of all its gifts but innocence restore,
And Eden," sigh the trees, "is at your door."

George Meredith's Little Boot-Black.

BY ANNA SHIELDS.

"Black your boots, sir?"

It was a childish voice, sweet and pleading, most unlike the usual shrill, half-impudent tone of the boot-black army, and George Meredith looked down to see the speaker. Being a tall man, over six feet, and somewhat portly, with fifty-five years of life, mostly of prosperity, he looked quite a distance downward before he saw the little fellow who spoke. Such a very little fellow! He did not look more than six years old, and had close clustering curls of fair hair, and big blue eyes like a baby. But the small face was pale and thin, the limbs, but scantily clad, were far too slender, and the low, sweet voice had an unchildlike pathos in its tone.

"No—" said Mr. Meredith, before the look. "Well yes, you may!" he added afterwards. "What's your name?" he asked presently.

"George Scott."

"H'm—Orphan?"

"No, sir. Mother is living, but she slipped on the ice about two weeks ago and broke her arm. She did not think I was big enough to work before that, but she had to let me try then. I don't make out very well. Gentlemen think I'm too little. But I can make boots shine, can't I?"

"You have certainly made that one shine," was the reply while Mr. Meredith thought: "Here is something rare, indeed, a boot-black who talks correct English. Has he stepped out of a novel?"

In a moment he spoke again.

"What work did your mother do?" he asked.

"Embroider for a fancy store. She couldn't work very fast because she isn't very strong; but we don't eat a great deal; that's one comfort."

"Sorry comfort!" muttered the gentleman. "Any brothers or sisters?"

"All dead, sir. Mamie was the last 'cept me, and she died in consumption. She was sixteen and helped mamma sew and keep the room in order. Oh, dear!"

It was just a child's sigh, coming from a full heart to answer the look of interest and sympathy in the gentleman' face.

"Do you like blacking boots?" was the next question.

"No, sir!"

"Would you like to run errands?"

"I think I should."

"How much can you make a day now?"

"The most I ever made was forty cents. This is my first job to-day."

"Can you read?"

"Why yes, sir. I am ten years old!"

"You come to-morrow morning to the address on this card, and I will try you for an errand boy."

Then giving the lad a fifty-cent piece and refusing to wait until he went to get change for it, George Meredith strolled off to his hotel, his solitary dinner and bachelor apartments.

"Odd," he thought, "how much that boy reminds me of some one, I can't think who it is. Some one who had just such big blue eyes, at once shy and frank, drooping most of the time, but candid and truthful when they did meet your own. H'm; it is very vague, but somebody I once knew had just such eyes. Poor little chap! I'll give him a decent suit of clothes, and pay him enough to live on until his mother gets well. It won't ruin me!"

And considering that the speaker counted his money by hundreds of thousands, it seemed likely it would not.

The little, eager lad who walked into the rich lawyer's office the next day was an improved edition of the boot-black of the night before. He had on his "best" suit, well worn, but whole, and his linen was white, his hair nicely brushed, and his boots shining.

"Mother better?" asked Mr. Meredith.

"No, sir," was the sad, quiet answer, "she couldn't get over to the dispensary this morning to have her arm dressed. She was so dizzy she had to lie down."

"That's bad! Suppose you tell me where you live?"

"No. 17 Merriam Court, sir, back of ——street."

"H'm! Well, I'll give you your first errand."

He wrote a note, directed it to "Dr. James Turner," added the address, and gave it to the boy.

"You'll be sure to know me, sir?"

"I know what kind of a boy you are, and I'll know you."

"Now," he thought, "I shall know if he is an imposter, at any rate. By Jove!" he exclaimed aloud, "it's Agnes Wellden!"

Then clients and friends came in, and the business of the day commenced.—But the boy was not forgotten. Errands that were not too far away to tax his strength were provided, a hearty dinner at a restaurant was given him, and he went home with a steady engagement at five dollars a week promised him.

In that home a sad-eyed woman, in a shabby widow's dress, her face lined with pain and sorrow, but yet a sweet, tender face, had been all the weary day living her life again. She saw herself a child in her father's pleasant home, where there was never great wealth, but every comfort and an atmosphere of love around them all. She saw herself a young, pretty girl, with many friends, and some lovers. One of these was a man older by fifteen years than herself; grave and tender, but who seemed in her girlish eyes too old and solemn to think of love. When her father told her that George Meredith had asked her to be his wife, she was frightened. It seemed as if it would destroy her youth, take all joyousness from her life, to marry this stately, reserved man, already a lawyer of standing.

She refused him, never appreciating the value of the heart that had been taken captive by her brightness and sweet girlishness. How could she know that it would have made the happiness of the grave, lonely man's life to surround her with all that could keep her as joyous and free as a butterfly?

He left his old home after his love-dream faded, but he left pleasant memories. Even after William Scott woced and won the woman he had lost, she could not quite forget the grave man who had loved her.

Sunny days of wedded happiness followed her happy girlhood. Children came to bless her, and when her parents died, her husband, her sons and daughters consoled her. She was past thirty years old when troubles came, thick, fast, overwhelming. Two children died on the same day of a prevailing fever, and before the month was over her husband followed them to the grave. He had been a clerk, on a moderate salary, and the nest egg in bank was very small, yet the widow looked at the little ones left her and strove to face her future bravery. It was the pitiful story to be heard every day—irregular work, poor pay, sickness, death! The removal from a country home to a crowded city, in the hope of better work and wages, proved a failure, and the air of a
