Election, Tuesday, November 5th, 1889. Polls open from 8 A. M. to 6 P. M. DEMOCRATS! VOTE THE TICKET STRAIGHT!

Just as you find it above-without scratchingdon't obliterate a star from the Democratic heaven! Then you'll feel happy! DEMOCRATS, BEWARE OF SPURIOUS

TICKETS. Democrats in Baltimore county will exercise proper care when they come to vote next Tuesday, as the county has been flooded with all manner of spurious tickets. The old wellknown Hickory Tree is used to deceive, if pos sible, by professing to be a Democratic Ticket, with these words at the top; but it is fraudulent, as the Republican Fusion candidates are printed below. Therefore, every Democrat should carefully examine his ballot and see that it is correct. There are a few Democratic voters who cannot read. Democrats who are aware of this fact should assist such voter when he comes to the polls, and see that he gets the right ticket. An abundance of plain, neat Democratic tickets have been sent to each polling place and can be had of the members of the Democratic Executive Committee in each District, or from the Judges of Election. Voters are pretty sharp in these degenerate days, and it is hard to fool them; but, once in a while a voter is trapped by not being wary.

GOOD NEWS, DEMOCRATS!

The canvas is now nearly closed, and from every District in the county from private information, as well as from our correspondents, coupled with information from the Democratic candidates, speakers and Democrats generally, comes the welcome intelligence that the Democratic ticket, headed by Louis Victor Baughman to and including Charles B. McClean, will be elected next Tuesday; but, the knowledge of that fact should not influence a single Democrat to relax one particle of vigilance to see elsewhere. that every Democratic vote is polled. If this be done our old-time Democratic majority will be the result. The old Republican-Fusion enemy has made a house-to-house canvas and has left his tracks uncovered. In many instances Democrats have discovered where down-right falsehoods have been uttered against Democratic candidates; all manner of misrepresentations have been made, and in one instance a most disreputable course has been pursued to gain votes for at least one of the conglomerate "What-is-it!"

Turning to a more pleasant part of the subject, the Democratic candidates and speakers all testify, that in their contact with the people during the canvas they find the Democrats alive and aware of what is going on, and they declare that when the votes are counted it will be found that their judgment as to the result will be fully sustained. All kinds of efforts have been made to swerve them from the Democratic path, but they say they can see no possible reason why they should desert a single candidate, as all are fit and worthy the support of every Democrat. There is no question as to the perfect fairness of the primaries, both judicial and county; there is no question as to the absolute fairness of the nominations; and there is no question as to the fitness and ability of every candidate upon our ticket. Therefore there can be, and is no dissatisfaction, save among that small class of restless persons who are never satisfied, but who, though an inhabitant of the celestial regions were a candidate. yet would they grumble, because they hadn't seen the angel first and secured his promise to give them a blessing as to what they wanted. emblazoned upon your glorious old banner, the banner of true Reform and of the Peo-

Don't sit down, but be up and doing, so that when 6 o'clock arrives on Tuesday evening you will have the consciousness of knowing that you have done your duty, and you will then be at liberty to give whatever war-whoop your lungs are capable of, accompanied by a tiger of prodigious resonance.

FABLE II.

A flock of political sheep were feeding in the party meadow while their dogs were asleep. and their shepherds, who, from long service. had become easy and confiding, were resting beneath a spreading shade tree. A young, inexperienced Democratic lamb, observing a halfstarved Republican wolf peering through the pales of the fence, began to talk with him. "What seek you here?" said the lamb. "I am looking," said the wolf, "for some tender grass, for nothing is more pleasant than to feed in a fresh pasture, and to slake one's thirst at a crystal stream, both of which I perceive you enjoy in their perfection. Happy creature, how much I envy you who have everything which I desire, for philosophy has long taught me to be satisfied with a little." "It seems then," returned the lamb, "those accuse you falsely who say you feed on flesh, since a little grass will easily content you. If this be true, let us in future live like brethren, and feed together." So saying, the simple lamb crope through the party fence, and at once became a prey to the pretended philosopher, and a sacrifice to his own credulity.

TOO THIN-SKINNED.

Our neighbor of the Union took offense at an expression in one of our recent issues in which we spoke of the Republican-Fusion crowd as the "Sandy Bottom party." Why should the close of the present year. The Baltimore and Republicans be ashamed of their colored friends? Do you not know, Mr. Union, that they are the bulk of your party in this the 3rd Precinct? skinned. BILL HARIG, CHARLEY GOODMAN AND JACK COWEN.

That is a nice trie to appear at a Fusion movement in the city. A mass meeting was held at the Concordia Opera House on Saturday night 26th ult. at which John K. Cowen introduced Bill Harig and Charley Goodman, each of whom professed to be Democrats, and each of whom went on to tell how they had, fifteen years since, stuffed ballot boxes, and did all manuer of illegal acts before and on election day. Cowen took this course in order to throw mud at Senator Gorman and to operate against the election of the present Democratic ticket in the city. Thousands of people throughout the city condemn and have expressed themselves as astounded at the despicable and desperate course of Mr. Cowen in putting upon the stand such persons to criminate even themselves to attempt thus to defeat the Democratic ticket. The police records of Goodman show that he has been arrested twenty-five times since 1868 for from common assault to assault with intent to kill; and Harig eighteen times for about the same offenses during the same time. By such a course Cowen "loses his head," so to speak, and shows that he expects to win only by the use of slimy methods. The people of the city look upon such efforts in politics as of the most abandoned character, and it is a confession of utter weakness. If Mr. Davidson, the Democratic candidate for Mayor, was a rounder in politics, or if any of the Democratic candidates had bad characters, the course of Mr. Cowen could be accounted for. But, the Democratic ticket is commended on all sides for its excellence throughout. Mr. Cowen seems to be biting a file. However, the lies of Harig

"TWO BULLETS AND A BRAGGER." There is a game in cards, we believe, where an exceptionally good hand is known as "two bullets and a bragger." It reminds us very much of Bill Harig and Charley Goodman, the two bullets, and John K. Cowen as the bragger. The two bullets above would amount to nothing special, but when accompanied by the bragger, becomes a formidable hand. The Baltimore public is not at all surprised at the antics to put himself in company with Mr. William Harig and Mr. Charles Goodman, who allege that way back in 1875, fourteen years since, they had committed a lot of enumerated crimes, to-day for the first time seeing the light. It does not seem possible for Mr. Cowen to succeed except by going into the political graveyard of 1875 and digging up two hideous, rotten carcases, into which ho is attempting to breathe the breath of political life. It is not necessary of County and City Commissioners, three perto surmise that Mr. Cowen ought to be ashamed of himself, but his political rancor is of such a kind that he believes the end justifies the means. The means, however, are of the most | three Judges and two Clerks each, at $25, $2, despicable character, and fully stamp upon their face those almost exhalistic words of Holy Writ-"Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin." MOUNT WINANS, BALTIMORE CO., Editor JOURNAL:

The present campaign is drawing to a close and I must say a few words of the political situation. I am not much of a political writer. but I will try and give some of the readers of the JOURNAL, and to some of the half-breeds or Fusionists, some of the old 13th-District Democracy. One, of my first things that I will say is to Mr. Keech. Two years ago in that Independent movement Mr. Keech spoke at Mitchell's Hall, St. Dennis. He degraded our Justice of the Peace, (Mr. Geo. S. Kieffer,) who was then a candidate for County Commissioner on that ticket, to such an extent that the windows rattled and the floor began to creak, because the man held, as he said, a job, and had to get or that ticket as a Mugwump candidate; and finally he ended on his old story of the pigs in the bag. But now the tables have been turned I think the author of that story has measured the shoes and has found that they will fit him, and is consequently wearing them. I say here that to day our Independent candidate of two years ago had more pluck than Mr. Keech will ever have, for the simple reason that one week before the election there was an Independent meeting held here in Foster's Hall, and Justice Kieffer was Democrat enough to keep his hands off. And this was not all, when election day came, behold! George did not even go to the polls and vote for himself. Kind readers. look; which of the two gentlemen are the worst? I think, as I said before in his story. that those pigs can be pigs, and pups when they want to be pups. Just so with His Honor Mr Keech, he can be a Democrat when he wants to, and be a Fusionist at another time. The next gentleman is Mr. Ridgely. REPUBLICAN DEVILTRY

Let every Democrat in Baltimore county peruse the annexed description of an iniquitous bill which is to be presented at the approaching session of Congress, and then let him decide whether any man calling himself a Democrat should support any such party. Every species of deviltry which they think will perpetuate their power throughout the country will be attempted to be passed at the next sersion of Congress, because they have a bare maority to do so. As will be seen they promise big money for a lot of offices to be created.— Here is the bill as given by the Washington correspondent of the Baltimore American: "Representative Houk, of Tennessee, is the first Republican in the Fifty-first Congress to come to the front with a prepared bill placing the control of elections where representatives to Congress are chosen in the hands of the federal government. This subject will undoubtedly create a great deal of agitation in Congress at the approaching session, and bring about the liveliest debates of any of the subjects which will be discussed. Judge Houk being the oldest Republican member from the South, is prominently mentioned for the Chairmanship of the Committee on Elections. His bill provides that the President shall appoint three qualified voters in each Congressional District, to be known as the Electoral Board of the District, upon the petition of not less than one hundred qualified voters, certified by the Clerk of the United States District Court in which it is alleged that the petitioners do not believe a fair registration and election, or either of them, can be held in that District under State supervision. The Board will appoint registrars for each precinct, to serve six years. The Board shall have absolute control over the appointments of registrars, and may remove them at will for failure to discharge their dusics faithfully. The Electoral Board may, inttead of dividing the election district, provide two places for voting, adjacent to each other, with two ballot boxes, and appoint two sets of Judges and Clerks to receive and count the votes. The Board is given instructions in the bill as to supervision under Clerks and Judges for the casting and counting of votes, preventing intimidation and fraud, and, in short, giving general supervision to a free ballot and a fair count. There is a provision for the canand Goodman are not believed by even the vass and re-canvass of the returns and the ballots cast. The Attorney-General of the United States is instructed to prepare suitable books and blanks for the election of officers. The bill is very lengthy, and gives specific instructions as to registrations and conduct of elections and the returning of the results, so there can be no question as to a conflict of State and federal authority. Judge Houk holds that his bill is constitutional, and cites Article 1. Section 4, paragraph 1 of the Constitution of the United States as his authority. This section of the Constitution reads: 'The times, places and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature of Mr. Cowen, who is put to a desperate strait | thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the place of choosing Senators.'

The import of the hill is to give absolute federal authority over all elections whereat members of Congress are chosen. Judge Houk makes an estimate of the probable expenses for the enforcement of his proposed law in each Congressional District, which is as follows: Congressional Electoral Board, at $20 per day, sixty days, $1,200; expenses same, $800; State Board of Canvassers, at $20 per day, thirty days, $600; expenses, $400; office rent, $400; Board sons, five days at $15, $75; average of ten for each district, $750; one hundred registrars, average ten for each county, at $4 per day, ten days each, $4,000; one hundred polling places, 500; one Judge to deliver returns at $5, $500; There are at prescut 325 members of Congress, and, therefore, that number of Congres-

new States are admitted five additional congressional districts will be added, making 330 Congressional Districts. Thus $11,150, multiplied by 330, makes a grand estimate of expenses, according to the appraisement of Judge Houk, of $3,678,500 for the enforcement of this law, if all districts should demand Electoral Boards. The fact should be taken into consideration, however, that probably not one-half of the Congressional Districts in the United States will demand this federal supervision of elecn your courty was received. It has been to-day | tion. The object is, of course, aid for the Southern districts where it is claimed voters are intimidated, and honest returns are the exception to the rule. One of the important provisions of the bill, and the last section of the measure. provides that members of the Electoral Boards of the Congressional District Commissioners, Judges, Clerks and other officers shall be exempt from arrest by State authorities during the time required for the performance of the duties prescribed in this Act.' DEMOCRATIC DOCTRINE FOR YOUNG MEN TO READ.

With which party should a young man, who takes his politics not by inheritance or by dictation from others, but by his own intelligent and independent judgment, identify himself Where will he find sentiments and politics that are worthy of his adoption and ardent support? Surely not in the Republican party. That is to-day the party of reaction, while he belongs to the future. Its leaders are generally men past the time of life, who naturally believe in perpetuating the condition under which they wou leadership and their party reached power. Their statesmanship consist, accordingly, in efforts to maintain war passions as a lasting sentiment, and war taxes as a permanent policy. The young voter can find neither glory for himself nor benefit for his country by supporting them in either effort. The great sectional issues slowly ripening from the foundation of our government, were fought out by the men of a quarter of a cenury ago. Every question submitted to the rbitrament of war has been settled so indisoutably that a search warrant could hardly find, in all the land, a corporal's guard who do not understand and fully acquiesce in that setlement. The exceptions, if any such there be, are found among the old and non-combatant.— The generation on whom the storm burst met its fury as constant and brave men. Honor and abiding glory are with the man who fought real battles and made real sacrifices.— But for those doughty warriors who defy foe that no longer exist, who delight to insalt the vanquished, re-open wounds that time has healed and who filled the arena with their vaporings and imprecations, there should be mly scorn and derision in the future. History is always on the side of the magnanimous. Her laurels are lavishly bestowed on

But if there are no titles or brevets in the army of the bloody shirt, which self-respecting young men should aspire or consent to wear, are general politics of the Republican party worthy of support? self-government. That is their vitalizing principles. Under no theory or practice do we reach the goal of government by the people, that government that belongs to the people, not the government to which the people belong. That government that deals with a citizen at long range becomes his master, no matter what its name be, or how its machinery may work.— That government which he can hold immediately under his eye, on which he can constantly keep his hand, that is his servant. Our Constitution, growing out of the voluntary union of independent States, made it possible to combine the two sovereignties—State sovereignty for local affairs—a combination that has been weightily pronounced the highest reach of constructive statesmanship. The party that overrides the autonomy of the State, that seeks to have the general government nterfere with and assume to control matters which the States should and ought exclusive to deal with, wars against fundamental principles of our institutions, the law of their life and of their healthy expansion. Yet such s the steady, unrelaxing gravitation of the Republican party, and to-day we find it not only, as ever striving to gather all political nower to the Feveral Government, but even to pestow upon it that "worldly omnipotence that is annexed to the power of dealing out wealth

Its chief existence, as avowed by itself, is to maintain a system of taxation that hampers national progress, represses production, clogs rade, makes war on commerce, and that, having in all these ways diminished the earnings of labor, interposes with cruel favortism to divert a part of those earnings into the pockets of chosen beneficiaries. in truth it is but the cast-off garment of British statesmanship. More than forty years ago, when England sought to widen the bounds of freedom, she decreed the extinction of class taxation. In lifting the burden of unequal taxation from the backs of her laborers, she lifted a political and social pressure which was equally as heavy and to a free man far more galling. This so-called "American system" makes the American laborer more of a serf than his English brother. From his current earnings it gathers not only the bulk of the taxes needed for the support of government, but even greater sums to be bestowed in free and uncarned bounty on those who are already so rich that they are his employees. Out of these bounties are springing up monopolies, monster combinations of capital, and the trusts that wrap

Over against the banner of the bloody shirt it plants the flag of a restored union and a reconciled people; a flag that rep. resents no primacy of section, no grades or geographical distinctions of citizenship, but quality of States and equality of people. Against political centralization, by the massing of powers in the Federal Government, it fights for vigorous and healthy local governments as the safe-guard of personal freedom.— Against the centralization of wealth by unjust taxation, it fight, for equality of burdens as the and at the places and at the hours named: condition of equal manhood. In all its history, and never more zealously than now, it has not sought to add to the powers of the government. but to the statute of the men, not to circumscribe the citizen with increasing interference, but to widen the bounds of his free, untrammeled actions. Trusting to the capacity and virtue of the whole people to govern themselves, it has never permitted a few to share in the powers of taxation as a reward for their administration of government, or as a bribe for their support. Knowing that under any wise and frugal government, prosperity and wealth would come by national laws to our people, its concern has not been how it might increase trade or wealth, but how it might preserve and secure liberty. It recognizes that to foster capital is to make labor more dependent. True Democracy means a chance in life for every man. We have loved to boast that uner free and cough government we had forever rid ourselves of the class of laws and social prejudice that made honor and social position and property the heritage of a privileged order and condemned the great body of the people to a poverty and obscurity from which ted to our young men who have risen from lowest beginnings by mere force of virtue and merit as the most precious fruit of free institutions. Yet this fruit is now threatened with deadly blight. The corporation, steam and electricity, the great forces of modern industry, are torribly centralizing in their effects.-By their own free play they threaten the integrity of government and the liberty of the citizen. But when the laws step in, not to curb or chasten, but to aid and increase their effects, to add to the power of wealth, to cherish and protect monopoly and to stimulate that latest and most dangerous form of commercial combination, the centralization of corporations into trusts, a shadow is flung across the path of the American youth; barriers that cannot be surmounted are rising before him; his heritage is passing from him into the possession of others. This is the great contest of the future—the struggle between the people and the pleutocray. The Democratic party, as the hereditary champion of the people, is rallying to their cause with an enthusiasm it has never before felt. The Republican party is chained in helpless, and. sad to say, seemingly willing service to the money power. It has made its covenant with that power. "Keep us in control of the government and you shall dictate the laws."

No young man ought to hesitate as to his duty in such a struggle. He discredits his manhood when he enlists under the banner of the bloody shirt. He wars against prosperity when he consents to accept services or command in the subsidized battalions of monopoly. The fight for lower taxes is a fight for higher manhood. The fight for local sovereignty is a fight for broader freedom. There are, as Mr. Cleveland well says, no weak, weary or despondent members of the true Democracy to-day. In its success are involved not only the issues of restored citizenship, of just and equal taxation, but the more momentous question, whether the race in life shall be kept open equally to all American youth or the chasm grow wider between the rich and the poor, as the power of the government is thrown in favor of the one and against the other. A LIVING MODEL OF THE GREAT NAPOLEON BONAPARTE.

If a sculptor should desire to get a faithful portrait statue of the Great Napoleon Bonaparte he would be largely aided to faithfulness in his work by a study of the features of Charles Joseph Bonaparte, the grand-nephew of the Emperor. Of all the living Bonapartes here is no one so like in countenance as this Baltimore lawyer. Mr. Bonaparte is the grandson of the Jerome Bonaparte, brother of the Emperor, whose marriage to the lovely Elizaboth Patterson in Baltimore in 1804 and the subsequent annulment of their union, make deep interesting page of the history of the century. Madame Patterson-Bonaparte's only ion, who was also a Jerome by given name, was not strongly marked in facial characteristics as a Bonaparte, nor is his oldest son, the Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, who married the granddaughter of Daniel Webster and shines in society at Washington, Newport, New York and Boston, much of a likeness of his Corsican ancestor. But in Charles Joseph Bonaparte there is a remarkable reproduction of the head of the man who fell at Waterloo and died on St. Helena. The oval face, the firm, strong jaw. the aggressive chin, the overhanging forehead and the piercing eyes, are all there, and the resemblance is increased by Mr. Bonaparte's fashion of bringing his hair down to something like a bang on his brow, which is familiar in the portraits of his grand uncle. This Bultimore Bonaparte is very wealthy through the cause of its being election day and a legal holiday. legacies of his grandmother, but he labors at his profession as closely as if he had his living to earn .- Philadelphia Inquirer. And we would add, that no man in the pro fession of the law to day in this country stands higher in those rare abilities which make the FFICE CLOSED. Bonaparte. He is the soul of honor, and utterly devoid of the small subterfuges and de vices which so often and so much afflict some members of the noble profession of the law.-You can always count upon Charles J. Bonaparte doing the thing that, to him, appears right, no matter where placed, and he never makes excuses once his judgment dictates the course. In this quality he is eminently like the

RAND JURY REPORT.

SEPTEMBER TERM, 1889. To the Honorable the Judges of the Circuit Court for We respectfully report that the Grand Jury has been in session for 35 days; have docketed 133 cases, examined 302 witnesses, found 62 presentments found 62 true bills, ignored 3 cases, dismissed 7 cases and referred 3 cases to the next Grand Jury. We visited the Jail and found it in a neat and or derly condition; the numbers confined therein 22 In compliance with the special charge of the Honorable Court we have investigated all violations of the Sunday law brought to our notice in the 12th District, known as the "shell Road," and other tributaries leading out from Baltimore, and notwithstanding the k eat reluctance of witnesses we have succeeded in finding presentments against quite a number of parties for open violations of the sunday law. From information we recognize in The Law and Order Society," composed of law-abiding citizens and tax-payers, a desire to promote the peace and quietness of the Sabbath by having brought to justice violators of the law, and we therefore recommend that the County Commission ers appoint a Special Sunday Police Force, and that such compensation be allowed said Police Force as shall compensate them for their service. A Committee was appointed to examine the Treas urer's Books, and the report of the Committee is We extend our sincere thanks to the Court and its officers for their uniform kindness and courtesy.
