SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1897.

New York papers of Saturday last announced a reduction in the price of roasted coffee to ten and a quarter cents a pound for cash to wholesale dealers, the lowest price ever touched since the package trade in roasted coffee was instituted. As the reducin the roasted article has thus been twice as great as the fall in the raw staple, the natural conclusion is that Mr. Havemeyer has not exaggerated the profits of the business, and that a safe margin still remains for permanent competition between the sugar barons and the coffee kings, to whose feud the people are indebted for the slump in prices. Obviously the only way for the coffee men to hit back will be to make a cut in the price of sugar. On with the merry war! It will be a grand eye-opener to the country on the beneficent LOW Prices Prevail. workings of the law of competition.

The municipal authorities of Norfolk, Va., have under consideration an ordinance to tax newspapers. Daily morning newspapers, it is proposed, shall pay $100, afternoon papers $50 and weekly newspapers $25 per year for license to do a publishing business. This would be practically a tax on intelligence. The ordinance should be supplemented by a license tax on parents who send their children to school so much per head, and on preachers who aim to bring Norfolk sinners to repentance. Probably this ordinance is obnoxious to the provision of the Constitution prohibiting any abridgement of the freedom of speech or of the press.

The majority of women will probably agree that it is easier to learn to ride on a bicycle than to cook a good meal. It is healthier to exercise out on the roads in the spring than to work in the kitchen, and there is a chance of see more men.
