Snows and tornadoes are making things lively out West. Whatever else may be charged against the new century, it cannot truthfully be accused of tiresome monotony.

If the House of Representatives has its way, the new peso of the Philippines will be worth 40 cents. So long as it does not look like 30 cents we don't care what it is worth.

An Eastern city official who has just been indicted for bribery cries out. "Do not send me to prison. Think of my family!" It is strange how the culprits never think of their families until they are caught in a tight place like that.

In case the Coal Trust is treated to a governmental injunction, then those who see their meat bills retaining the same gigantic proportions so consistently will throw up their hands in despair at contemplating the prospects for coal prices next

The cause of the cold weather at present and cloudy, short twilights, according to Mr. G. P. Serviss, is the minimum of sunspots from which our great luminary is now suffering. The brevity of twilight is not due, i is held, to any change in atmospheric Fefraction of the san's rays, but to clouds caused by the untimely chill in the air, and this chill is a sunspot, or, rather, a non-sunspot, phenomenon. "The sun," he says, is just now in a most unusual state. The period of minimum spottedness has been greatly prolonged, and the history of sunspot eruptions shows that such a prolongation generally, if not invariably, occurs before quick and intense outbreaks of energy at the solar surface. Accordingly we must expect that when the sunspots come again they will come rapidly, in large numbers, and will be of great size, and probably accompanied by startling magnetic disturbances and splendid displays of the Aurora Borealis." In other words, when the spots come again and the sun has a fair chance at us, we shall have roasting weather with electrical storms of aninteresting character. It is believed that the light and heat rays of the sun are only a fraction of the rays Sol sends us, most of them being invisible. The Aurora Borealis, according to certain serious scientists, is due to some of these invisible rays that emanate from the sun and strike particles of matter in the rarified air high above the earth's pole, making it Inminous. Little is known about these rays, beyond the fact of their existence. Most of them have been only recently discovered," but meteorologists are disposed to trace to them a number of the mysterious phenom of their science.

An army transport is on its way to Mauila, conveying there, among its general cargo, 4,000 coffins for use in bringing back to this country the remains of as many brave soldiers of our army who lost their lives there during the war. A New Jersey court has officially lefined "goo-goo eyes" as "attentions without intentions," and henceforward they rise from the irresponsibility of ragtime song to the dignity of a legal habitation and a name. An incidental deduction from this grave definition is that courts also share to some degree in the weakness of hunan nature, which is directly responsible for "goo-goo eyes," since the learned judges on the bench can so occurately enter into their signifi-
