

RE WAYS THAN ONE.

By A. ST. JOHN ADCOCK.

When I was young... "Noting; but I ran away with Charley at once." "I knew you would."

Black Adventure.

A NERVOUS WESTERN GIRL.

MISS EMMA KELLOGG, of Routt County, is an applicant for the position of Game Warden for Routt County. Her arrival in Denver created a sensation in the Capitol corridors.

SCIENTIFIC INDUSTRY.

The work of cutting up asphalt when repairing pavements, heretofore done by two men with chisel and mallet, is now done by a simple invention of Joseph Richards.

A COUGAR FIGHT.

The Northwest has probably furnished more cougar fights and encounters with wild animals than any other part of the United States.

A DARING FEAT.

One of the famous McNeil rescues of the Civil War, E. A. D. White, died at his home, Marrison, Rockbridge County, Virginia, recently.

In Johannesburg.

Housewives who complain about the "price of things," may bless their stars that they are not in Johannesburg.

The Silent Man.

Under some conditions a man can make more noise in the world by keeping his mouth shut than in any other way.

Woman's Useful.

By Eben E. Rexford.

If you organize a village improvement club, include the women in it, and give them an opportunity to express their ideas.

The Penalties of Prominence.

By Sara Yorke Stevenson.

HERE is a growing, if unexpressed, belief pervading every sphere of our social structure that as the State is entitled to levy a tax on an exchange for the comforts secured by them while living under its protection, so the community entitled to tax every citizen who has achieved intellectual distinction, in exchange for such benefits as he may derive therefrom.

Modern Science Proves the Bible True.

PERHAPS the most remarkable event in the history of modern Christianity is the unexpected confirmation of Bible truths from the hands of what seemed to be its arch-enemy, Modern Science.

Conventionalities Limits the Individual.

By Margaret Stowe.

It is noticeably evident that common sense and broader thought are gradually doing away with the social conventionalities of life. We have come to realize that to conform to rules and regulations that have no sensible reason for existing means handicapping ourselves to a very small circle of thought and action.

Woman's Useful.

By Eben E. Rexford.

If you organize a village improvement club, include the women in it, and give them an opportunity to express their ideas.

The Penalties of Prominence.

By Sara Yorke Stevenson.

HERE is a growing, if unexpressed, belief pervading every sphere of our social structure that as the State is entitled to levy a tax on an exchange for the comforts secured by them while living under its protection, so the community entitled to tax every citizen who has achieved intellectual distinction, in exchange for such benefits as he may derive therefrom.

Modern Science Proves the Bible True.

PERHAPS the most remarkable event in the history of modern Christianity is the unexpected confirmation of Bible truths from the hands of what seemed to be its arch-enemy, Modern Science.

Conventionalities Limits the Individual.

By Margaret Stowe.

It is noticeably evident that common sense and broader thought are gradually doing away with the social conventionalities of life. We have come to realize that to conform to rules and regulations that have no sensible reason for existing means handicapping ourselves to a very small circle of thought and action.