Which being read his Excellency was pleased to Order the Sheriff to bring in Mr Philip Clark which accordingly he did

And his Excellency was pleased to tell Mr Clark that he did not detain him in Prison upon any Prejudice to him but that all the Country might see that he was legally condemned and Imprisoned because that upon a former Perjury upon the like Offence he had spread Abroad Reports both false and scandalous and during the time of his Imprisonment he had reported that at the Provincial Court he would produce sufficient Reasons in Law to reverse the Judgment and procure his Liberty and being now the time of the Provincial Court he willed him if he thought he needed not the Kings mercy to Produce but if he could not that after the end of the Court upon his Giving Bond for Security of the Peace and his good Behaviour he would extend his Majestys mercy so far to him as to release him from his Imprisonment

Then his Excellency told the House that he had recommended to them to pay several Gentlemen employed for his Majestys Service especially Mr Dent who he said was a Lawyer and thereby got his Bread And since they had not considered his Service he could not see him a Subject but then upon made him a Present of a Bill of Exchange for which his Excellency's Bounty and Generosity Mr Dent returned his Excellency humble thanks

After which his Excellency was Pleas'd to Prorogue them until the 26 day of June next

To Ended this Second Sessions November the 12th 1698
