To the bill for reviving the Temporary Lawes, His Lord<sup>s</sup> says that in that bill there is mentioned a act for killing of Wolves to be revived by the same, which ought not to have been there. . . . because by an act of Assembly for ascertaining of Lawes of this province of said act is made perpetuall and soe has noe neede of being revived.

To which Mr<sup>r</sup> Speaker made answer that though of act was by a mistake put into of act for ascertaining the Lawes, which Law for ascertaining the Lawes is a perpetuall Law, yett he humbly conceives that the act for killing of wolves, being in its owne body expressed to be temporary is not made perpetuall by being barely inserted into the other for though that Law be perpetuall which ascertaines the Lawes therein mentioned to be Lawes, yett he conceives it changeth not of nature or quality of any Law from being temporary to be perpetuall, but only ascertaines them to be Lawes in such manner and forme, and to such Intents and purposes as in the body of the same Lawes were before inserted.

To which His Lord<sup>s</sup> replies of of act for killing of wolves is without doubt made perpetuall, because the act which ascertaines of same to be a Law is perpetuall and hath ascertaines of act to be a Law accordingly.

Therefore His Lord<sup>s</sup> desires Mr<sup>r</sup> Speaker and of Members of the Lower house to return to the Lower house and consider thereof, and also to consider of in of said act of Reviver are conteyned severall good Lawes necessary to be revived, which His Lord<sup>s</sup> says he is willing to assent to, and that the bill for killing of wolves be left out of of said Bill.

Whereupon Mr<sup>r</sup> Speaker and the Members returned to their house and take their places. And after severall Arguments and Debates concerning of same. It was put to the Question, whether a new bill of Reviver shall be drawne leaving out of of act for killing of wolves.

(voted in the Negative)

The question was then put whether the same bill be againe presented to His Lord<sup>s</sup> for his assent. Resolved in the affirmative.

Then this house goe into the Upper house, and after severall Arguments relating to of said Bill of Reviver His Lord<sup>s</sup> Dissented to of said Bills - but to the other Bills, being six in Number Entituled as followeth:

1. A Bill for Naturalizing Peter Mauger de Moyne and others.
2. A Bill Limiting of extent of Attachments and Executions.
3. A Bill Regulatiny of tars and Abuses in Tobacco Hogsheads.
4. A Bill for Naturalizing Paulsone Johnsons and others.
5. A Bill for Advancement of Trade.

His Lord<sup>s</sup> Commands of Great Seall to be affixed, And with his owne hand subscribed these words Viz: - Wee will these to be Lawes
