ODDS AND ENDS.

It is a lean pig that is always squealing. Don't swear to your own honesty in a horse trade.
The summer girl makes love while the moon shines.
A seed that will not grow is no better than one that is rotten.
It is decidedly ill bred to eat anything, even confectionery, in the street.
The race track is a bad place to go on the first day of your vacation.
In reading and studying, the pages should be held about a foot from the eye.
Gladstone was in power when he introduced his home rule bill, in April, 1885.
Weak pearl-shaw is said to be good to remove stains caused by acids on scarlet woolen goods.
In south America the native children will drag huge catpawds out of their holes and crunch them up.
It is becoming more and more the fashion to hang lace curtains straight, so as to show their full design.
The cool night that you can sleep is the one that the baby chooses to be waked up and down until daylight.
Most samples of the most of the Christmas trees used in New York city and exported many to south America.
From one sugar pine tree felled last winter in the Sierra mountains fourteen logs were cut, each 100 feet long.
During last year the takings at the Parisian theaters amounted to $1,620,000, or nearly $125,000 more than in 1890.
It is said that umbrellas have an almost human antipathy to a crowd. "One at a time" is the motto of the umbrella.
Slate floors should be polished, rubbing first with a smooth, flat piece of pumice stone, and finally polish with rotten stone.
The great catfisher bridge at Niagara falls is a fine example of its kind. It is 510 feet in length, weighs 3,000 tons and cost $300,000.
With the modern elevator almost any speed desired can be obtained; it all depends upon the power used and the distance traveled.
The stockmen of South Dakota have recently imported from Tennessee a number of Russian wolf hounds to help in the extermination of wolves, which have of late been killing numbers of calves and colts.
Managing Husbands.
When you have learned to take a man by the collar you have learned the most important part of the management of men. If a man is inclined to be rough and harsh, used to ordering men about—perhaps accustomed to scold and growl—just as you see a man and easily frightened as a baby. Let your lip tremble and your eyes fill and say, "George, don't, don't, speak like that!" He will be afraid to irritate him. He frightened if he sees you ready to run if he growls. These big, ugly fellows are the tenderest hearted men in the world, but you must not at the tenderest in them, or you will find yourself luffed about, and no woman can stand that.
If a man is dictatorial, be as gentle and yielding as you can let to make yourself. Don't pretend you know, but really yield. Sink your own opinions, but have a great respect for the truth. This dictatorial man is usually dictatorial because they have genuine confidence in their own opinions. They will more willingly admit to themselves that they are wrong than they are to admit that they are right. It is the easiest thing in the world to make them change their views, only you must not seem to change them. Let them do it of their own will and reason and intelligence. Then agree with them always. It is the right thing they have come to, and in so coming they have vindicated their superiority. It isn't that they have agreed with you and so admitted themselves beaten. Forego your little triumph. The important thing is that the man you are managing should be managed.—James Miller Magazulu.

THE GUELPH FUND.
King George of Hanover left to his widow, Queen Marie, 1,000,000 German dollars ($150,000), and to each of his daughters half that sum, that is, another $150,000 between them. He directed these legacies to be paid out of the interest of the Guelph fund, which had been in possession of the Prussian government for more than eleven years before his death. King George had no right to dispose of any part of the fund except the interest which came in during his lifetime. The interest amounted to $80,000 a year. So there were enormous arrears when the king died. Queen Victoria was appointed executrix, in the hope that through her influence a portion of the lost interest might be recovered for the king's widow and daughters.
The queen so far has never been able to obtain the payment of the legacies for Queen Marie and her daughters, but has often endeavored most strenuously to exact the money from the Prussian government. Prince Bismarck appears to have expended the interest in the secret service as fast as it came in.—London Cor. New York Tribune.

A white swan, which measured seven feet from tip to tip of wings, was shot recently on Long lake, near Belding, Mich.
Perhaps you wouldn't have so much trouble with your tongue if you could only trouble it more with God's language.
During the dog-day season, the drain of nervous and vital energy may be counteracted by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In purifying the blood, it acts as a superb corrective and tonic, and enables the system to defy malarial and other climatic influences.
