April 18 Artificial Mmeral Waters

TO THE PUBLIC.

OF all the choicest blessings bestowed on man, that of health has ever been most duly appreciated. Without this, no other can be truly enjoyed, and with it most affiction may find an alleviation. Whatever, there are, is conducive to promote and increase this blessing, hash strong claims of public pa ronage is conductive to promote and increase evilla lines, in the strong claims on public parsonage and support. As tending to the object, Artificial Mineral Waters [when properly prepared] have been found effectual, as w. Il in their physical as mirral tendency; a fording both an physical as meral tendency; affording both an agreeable and salutary beverage; which, whilst they increase or promote health, offer a pleasing substitute for the pernicious use of ardent spirits, the inclination to which (from the exhibitating effects of these Wakers) is consisterably lessened, is entirely removed; being found to possess all the agreeable without their enervating or intoxicating qualities.

The pursuit of this valued blessing has led many for age; natt to resort to springs family.

The pursuit of this valued blessing has led many for age; part to resort to springs fam of for their salubrious or restorative pawers even when exposed to every inconvenience, or when placed at the greatest distances. Happily the important discretives of Chemistry, bath so far obviated this difficulty, and enabled set to excite nature by an exact imitation of her process adduced from analysis—thus, their banche: all properties are garraned, or excluded at option.

It has been generally admitted that nature in the various diseases with which manking are afflicted, has been equally bountiful in durnishing a remedy, than which none as been found imore efficacious than the mac of those waters; having proyed successful in may cares, where iall other app leations half failed. Drependent of their medical properties, they afford the leaurious [either by themse ves or anited with pleasant syrups, &c] a truly nectarine bever-

The importance and utility of those celebrated water, have induced the proprietor to com-mence and apply every exertion to perfect an establishment so beneficial in its tendency; and his perseverance has been so far successful, as nis perseverance has been so tar successful, as to merit the approbation and support he has received in Philadelphia, as may be evinced by the following certificates with which he was favored by since of the most entire, t of the fa-

B. Blorgan.
The following was also r ceived from a gentleman of the most respectable Chymical knowledge, who had analysed the waters:

DEAR SIR,

I return you my thanks for the different spe-cimens of Artificial Mineral Waters you were pleased to favor me with, at the same time, cannot bu congratulate the citizens of Phila-delphia, on the acquisition of an establishment which affords them so salutary and agreeable a beverage. I say salutary, as nothing has been found more efficulation the use of those was ters in many cases, where all other applica-tions have failed; this effect chiefly resident in a principle which I have found to exist in a consi erable proportion in the waters as pre-pared by you; having discovered by analysing and comparing them with the natural watere, that they exceed by 33 times the quantity of fixed air any natural aracarbonic waters ever fixed air any natural aracardonic waters ever yet discovered, whilst their o her qualities are the same.—Wishing you every success so use-ful an establishment merits I am, J. STUART.

From the known liberality and public spirit of the citizens of Balumo.e, the subscriber has been induced to extend a branch of his establishment to this city—having employed an agent for that purp/se, whom he can with confidence recommend as fully competent to the correct mode of prep ring these waters, having practised with him since the commencement of the establishment in this count y. The p oprietor is persuaded his wishes and endeavors will be zealously seconded, in the most strenucus exertious to merit and obtain public approbation

It is expected the Waters will be delivery by the 37th instant, of which due no tice will be given.
