DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Holmes House is a large, two storey frame dwelling. It has a gable roof and an enclosed porch which extends around the house and exhibits the crossed, diagonal, stick railing which is popular in this community. The central portion of the house has a simplistic facade which is articulated by the multiple geometric patterning of the porch enclosure.

Highland Beach is located approximately ten miles south of Annapolis on the Chesapeake Bay. The Holmes house is situated on a block which is bounded by Douglass Avenue on the north, Wilders Avenue to the east, the Corporate Limits of Highland Beach to the south and Walnut Drive on the west. The topography slopes towards the Chesapeake Bay and is supportive of dense vegetation. The beach is within close proximity to the community but the developed area exhibits a woodland setting.

The house has been constructed on a pirt foundation which has not been enclosed on this property. The northern view or front of the house exhibits an enclosed porch with stich style railing and geometrically configured patterns of rectangles on the screened wall. The facade is three bays wide and is finished with weather board. The windows are large, double hung with multiple lights over a single pane on the first florr. The gable end of the northern view second floor exhibits a three paned window on the facade.

The eastern view of this house is the most articulate. It exhibits an enclosed porch which extends the length of the facade. The geometric pattern of stick work on the screening is more complex than in similar houses in the community and the mixture of diagonal, horizontal, and vertical lines contributes to the scaling down of the house which has such massive proportions. A large dormer with a shed roof extends from the slope of the gable roof. It supports four windows which are double hung and symmetrically placed on the facade.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Highland Beach, Maryland is a historic black town that was founded by the son of Frederick Douglass. The town was conceived by Haley R. Douglass in the late nineteenth century to be a resort community for prominent blacks. Highland Beach is a unique existing reminder of town planning and architectural history as it relates to vernacular and high style design as exhibited by black people. Most of the architecture in Highland Beach is located on the original sites and building expansions were performed within a ten to fifteen year time frame. This provides us with a concise history of design, space planning, and architecture in a homogeneous, extant community.

All of the cottages that were constructed prior to 1930 are important elements related to town planning and design. It is important that these houses retain their originality in terms of plan design, lot orientation, interior decoration, and architectural aesthetics in order to preserve the concept of space and the dynamics of community development in this historic black town.
