

CAPSULE SUMMARY

Clayton House
3208 Bruce Street
Highland Beach, Maryland

c. 1920

Private access

The Clayton House is one of a series of bungalow style cottages in the historically black town of Highland Beach. It represents a later addition to the architectural and social pattern of the community and significantly contributes to the form of the settlement. It is the summer home of the Claytor family and was once owned by Fannie Douglass of the Frederick Douglass family.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This cottage is a Bungalow with an extended gable roof sloping towards the rear of the house. It has bevelled siding and an exposed chimney. The house stands one and one-half storeys tall and has casement as well as hung windows. The original porch has been enclosed with aluminum and glass windows but the original brick based and wooden columned supports can still be discerned. There is an aluminum railing that cascades down the relatively steep, cement steps.

The Claytor House is located in Highland Beach on the block that is bounded by Black Walnut Creek in the north Bruce Avenue to the east, Bay Avenue to the south and Walnut Drive on the west. The lot is situated on one of the highest elevations in the community and slopes towards Black Walnut Creek. Most of the vegetation is natural consisting of an abundance of wild flowers, shrubs, grasses and trees. The lot has been partially cleared of the larger trees where the eastern view faces a marshy landscape contiguous to the Chesapeake Bay.

The Claytor House rests on a stone pier foundation and exhibits an exterior, brick chimney. The enclosed porch is finished with weatherboard and glass panels. A shed roof dormer consisting of three, six-paned windows extends from the long end of the gable roof. The aluminum railing on the flight of cement steps is one of the modern additional elements to the structure.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

see Highland Beach Settlement

Highland Beach, Maryland is a historic black town that was founded by the son of Frederick Douglass. The town was conceived by Haley R. Douglass in the late nineteenth century to be a resort community for prominent blacks. Highland Beach is a unique existing reminder of town planning and architectural history as it relates to vernacular and high style design as exhibited by black people. Most of the architecture in Highland Beach is located on the original sites and building expansions were performed within a ten to fifteen year time frame. This provides us with a concise history of design, space planning, and architecture in a homogeneous, extant community.

All of the cottages that were constructed prior to 1930 are important elements related to town planning and design. It is important that these houses retain their originality in terms of plan design, lot orientation, interior decoration, and architectural aesthetics in order to perserve the concept of space and the dynamics of community development in this historic black town.
