*(formerly Lyons Mill Road.)

Large impressive stone house, stuccoed a pale yellow, some distance from the road, in a grove of trees. Once included in a larger estate named "Westerogle." Original house built in 1735, by Dr. William Lyon, burned; rebuilt; it was Dr. Robert Lyon who built the present home and left it to his grandson, C. Lyon Rogers. Property is much reduced in size, but still surrounded by open fields.
