249 MAIN STREET
Reisterstown, Maryland.

Private

249 Main Street is one of the earliest houses of Reisterstown, probably dating from the late 18th century, having many characteristics in common with its neighbor 301-303. Its brick construction and Flemish bond front indicate the substantial prosperity of its builder.

The small barn is one of the few remaining out-buildings in Reisterstown.

249 MAIN STREET

249 Main Street is a two storey brick house, three bays in length, oriented to the street facing west. Its west facade is laid in Flemish bond, above a water table, characteristics, together with others, which relate this house to its neighbor 301-303, and like its neighbor, it probably dates from the late eighteenth century. Its interior was not accessible for inspection.

Ends and the rear facade are of common bond. Brick chimneys rise flush with each gable. The principal entrance is in the middle bay of the west front, slightly north of center. Windows of the west front have replacement 2/2 sash in wide frames, probably original. Windows in each storey in the south end, close to the southwest corner, have replacement 6/6 sash in narrow replacement frames. Jack arches above first storey windows are five courses in height while those of the second storey are four courses in height.

A two-storey, two-bay frame wing extends behind the north end. A one-storey hipped-roof porch extends across the west or street front. The gabled roof of the main house rises above a wide plain cornice, eave returns and a similar rake cornice.

Behind the dwelling is a small barn of frame construction, two storeys in height, sheathed in vertical board-and-batten siding. Its gable end is oriented to the side street, Bond Avenue, and it contains a small louvred window west of a single door hung on long wrought iron strap hinges. A pair of doors is at the north end of the west side and a larger opening closed with modern materials is at the south end; a small door opens into a loft, approximately centered in the west side.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

249 MAIN STREET

In 1813 John Reister, Jr. deeded this lot on which this house stands to his son, John Reister, III. The deed mentions houses. (WG 125/189ff) There were 2 acres in this parcel at the time. The house is similar to its neighbor 301-303 (Q.v.) and was probably built around the same time. There was no mention of the house, however, in the 1798 Federal Direct Tax Record. Houses are mentioned in all the deeds from John Reister, Sr. and Jr. to their children. These were probably built as the children married, but were not conveyed until later. Construction dates of dwellings can only be approximated as between time of marriages and dates of deeds. (Marks, op.cit., Note 19, p.41.)

John, Jr. followed his father's custom and deeded land to his children between 1804 and 1813 for their houses. John III probably farmed his father's land and helped with other family enterprises. He married Hellen Chapman in 1801. They had eight children. On April 11, 1822 "in consideration of Love and Affection" John Reister III, in turn, deeded the property to his seven remaining children. (BC WG 125/189 and WG 163/442) (Marks, op. cit., p. 91)

Hellen died in 1834, and John III lived with his five unmarried daughters in #249. When he died in 1841, he devised to the four unmarried daughters this property. (BC Wills DMP 18; (1840)442; 216-17) These girls were; Charlotte 1802-1888; Margaret 1807-1877 ; Caroline 1811-1856; and Ann Rebecca 1818-1863.

In 1845, Charlotte married William Dwyer, Jr. a widower with one child. She was 43 years old. It is assumed that she moved away.

Caroline died in 1856; Ann Rebecca in 1863.

Charlotte became a widow in 1870 when William Dwyer died. She returned to the house on the corner of Bond and Main Street, and lived with her last remaining sister, Margaret, until Margaret's death in 1877. The Altas for Baltimore County 1877 (Hopkins) shows this site as the home of the Misses Reister.

Charlotte lived on alone in #249. In 1887, she purchased the house and 2 acres from David McIntosh, trustee for the estate, for $1405.00. She died in 1888. She willed her property to her step granddaughter, Emma Shriver, to be used for her life, and after her death to be equally divided among Emma's children. (BC Wills TP 8/309-10)

Emma Shriver died in 1908 and her children received the property as planned. They were; Charlotte D. Shriver, Elizabeth Shriver & Frank Shriver. Charlotte and Elizabeth died leaving Frank as the sole heir of #249. When he died his will appointed the Mercantile Trust Co. as Trustee. (BC Wills WJP 23/414)

In 1929 the Mercantile Trust Co. deeded the property to C. William Parker for $3650.00.
