DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

A three bay two story I-plan that has been much altered. The building faces West on Delaware Avenue. Its main facade, in fact the entire first story, has been obliterated by a commercial alteration. It is presumed that there was a porch with a centrally located entrance. Only the second story is visible and it reveals three evenly placed 6/6 sash windows. One can see the gable-end roof with rather deep eaves, one finished with butt-end soffit.

While the present exterior covering is stucco it is suspected that clapboards are underneath.

The ends of the building reveal that the block is the equivalent of two bays in depth. The west bay of the south end is windowless and a modern off-center exterior flue chimney occupies the east bay on the north end.

The east facade is extended in that direction by a two story wing that is two bays by two bays. It has the appearance of an enclosed porch. This section is reached by a modern frame multi-level stairs that provided access to an apartment. It is guessed, however, that the building was not designed to be a combination shop/residence.

Brief examination of the interior saw little original fabric on either level. Land records and the Hopkins Atlas of 1877 suggest that this house was standing at that time.
