Description of Property and Eligibility Determination: (Use continuation sheet if necessary and attach map and photo)

The Batchelor House is a two-story, two-part commercial block. This wood frame building has an irregular plan due to multiple additions constructed on its north side and rear. The principal façade has fixed display windows and a pent roof, bracketed cornice parapet, and metal double-hung sash (1/1 light) windows. The shed roof building is clad by vinyl siding. Alterations, in addition to the windows and additions, include signage on the principal façade and north (side) elevation.

According to the MIHP form completed for this resource in 1980, the building was constructed between ca. 1873 and 1886 on the site of an earlier tavern. The building first was used as a cabinet shop and residence belonging to Daniel Yost. In 1889, the property was sold to Mary Batchelor. Since it was constructed, the building has housed several commercial enterprises. Currently, the building's original block is occupied by a retail store and the rear additions are occupied by offices and an auto parts store. Although this resource appears to have been continuously used as a commercial property, its architectural integrity has been compromised by multiple additions, the replacement of windows, addition of vinyl siding, and commercial signage. This property appears to be not eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places.

BATCHELOR STORE/ MENTZER CARRY-OUT

1873-1886

HEREFORD

PRIVATE

This frame, two-story, flat-roofed, Italianate Victorian commercial structure, now used as a pizza shop, is not to be confused with the Missinger or Mossinger Tavern. The store came into existence between 1873 and 1886 when both a dwelling and a cabinet-making shop were advertised as standing on the tract. The cabinet maker was Daniel Yost, found in the 1880 state business directory. The Yosts sold to Mary H. Batchelor in June 1889. The Batchelors engaged in store-keeping, and deeds thereafter call this parcel the "store lot." The store was run by persons named Rowe, Lee, Lloyd, Foster, Pearce, and various others. This somewhat citified structure is decorated with a narrow architrave and Italianate bracketing. Wall covering in places is aluminum paneling, but it is mostly red rubber shingling printed with a brick pattern.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The former Batchelor Store is an Italianate Victorian two-story flat-roofed commercial building with dwelling quarters above, a frame structure facing west, located on the eastside of York Road practically opposite the terminus of Mount Carmel Road. The store is six bays wide at second-story level, where the original design has not been altered; each bay contains a 6-over-6 double-hung sash window. The main block has a full-width, shed-roofed porch supported by four square wooden posts, one of them a recessed corner post. There is a very plain architrave above the posts and an overhanging cornice and soffit extends toward the street, providing mounting for some bare light bulbs. The porch roof is covered with contemporary material of white rubber or asphalt. The first-story main facade has suffered alterations from its days as a country store. The wall is sheathed with aluminum paneling, its ribs vertically aligned. There are seven bays, including three doors, one of them solid, the others with full-length frosted glass panes. One window is plugged up with plywood. The others are plate glass windows, rectangular in shape, vertically aligned, apparently set in the former frames of domestic sash windows.

The porch contains two newspaper vending machines, a tall white soft-drink vending machine, and some galvanized trash cans for the drive-in patrons' litter.

The top of the main block is decorated with a narrow architrave, a cornice, and heavy Italianate bracketing. This decoration wraps around the corners of the building for a few feet to effect an orderly termination.

The south end of the building is four bays deep at second-story level with 6-over-6 windows. The first story contains two plugged-up windows and a vent.

The north end of the store contains a rear, shed-roofed extension, one bay long on both sides, two bays in depth, tacked onto the main block; only one bay is left unobscured by later nondescript extensions, and it provides a door at second-story level, sheltered by a cantilevered hood; this is presumably a fire escape, because the deck outside that door is nothing more than the flat roof of a one-story office (for a CPA). The CPA's office is two bays in depth and windowless on the west or highway side; it can be entered through a door that faces south onto the main (and only) front porch. The street side of this wing or extension is sheathed in white aluminum siding, its ribs aligned vertically.

The main brick chimney rises along the north end wall, and just barely clears the flat roof.

The exterior of the building has been covered in most surfaces with red rubber siding, imprinted with a brick pattern. The foundation cannot be seen from the public street but is probably too early to be of concrete. The best feature of this store, which has been ruined in almost every possible way with contemporary materials, is its handsome cornice and bracketing, which compliments another store-dwelling immediately to the south.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Italianate store building now used as a pizza shop and carry-out food shop stands on what had been a larger parcel containing the Massinger Tavern (also spelled Missinger or Mossinger). The general store itself stands on a parcel called the "store lot" in a deed of 1898. (1) The overall parcel was sold several times in the 19th Century, and in 1873 only a house and stable was mentioned. (2) In 1886, a dwelling and "a shop which is used as a cabinet-maker's shop" was advertised. (3) The 1880 State directory had listed Daniel Yost as a cabinetmaker. At the 1886 sale, Rachel E. Yost was the buyer, recapturing the property from default, as it had belonged to her husband since 1879. (4)

In June 1889, Daniel J. Yost and Rachel E. Yost sold to Mary H. Batchelor, and there are various proofs that the Batchelors engaged in storekeeping. (5) Mrs. Batchelor was listed with a frame store building in the 1896 tax ledger plus the log house at No. 17,005 York Road, also a stable and out-buildings. (6) The Batchelors sold the "store lot" part of the tract Hereford Resurveyed, to Emily A. Rowe in 1898, and Ms. Rowe is found as a storekeeper in the 1902-03 State business directory. (7)

The 1911 Tax Ledger carried Amelia A. Rowe, who owned a storehouse ($4600) plus "Stock and General Merchandise" ($1400). (8) She sold in 1913 to Carl F. Lee, who held for a month and sold to Charles E. Lloyd. (9) Lloyd is listed under general merchandise in the 1915 State directory. (10)

Lloyd sold to John E. Foster in 1918 (11) and 1918 Tax Ledger, taken while Lloyd was still owner, listed the site as:

Dwelling	30 x 38	2 stories	$1111
1 Outbuildings			50
Mdse			1400. (12)

Foster sold to Thomas E. Pearce in 1921, and in the Great Depression, Pearce lost control and the property was auctioned and described in a very characteristic way:

Valuable lot improved by combined Store and dwelling in Village of Hereford Improved by a Frame Combination Store and Dwelling located on the easternmost side of York Road directly opposite the intersection of the road leading to Mount Carmel in the village of Hereford 7th District of Baltimore County. Also improved by garage and other outbuildings. The lot fronts 90 feet on the York Road with a depth of 200 feet. (13)

The store passed to the Baltimore County Bank, and in 1935, the receiver of the Bank sold the store to S. Wilton Ayres. (14) Arnold M. Ayres took title in 1945. (15) In 1947, the store passed to William M. Silver and Steven Marchison. In 1949, it passed to S. Wilson Ayres and Walter R. Mays; Margaret I. Spencer became owner in 1957, and in 1958, the building passed to Robert C. Hazard and wife, who hold a number of village properties. The pizza shop is called the Mentzer Carry Out. (16)

This store may date to the ownership of Daniel Yost and was possibly built between 1873 and 1886. It is a somewhat citified building for so rural a village, with its flat roof and Italianate cornice bracketing, perhaps symbolic of Hereford's ambition to be a complete and self-contained town.

The Mossinger Tavern was demolished around the turn of the Century and is not to be confused with the present store. A house now numbered 17,005 York Road is apparently a replacement of the demolished tavern.
