4. NOTABLE FEATURES, HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE AND DESCRIPTION OPEN TO PUBLIC NO  When Thomas Chalkley owned this farm in 1710, it was called "Garden" or "Choice". Part of the present house may date from his ownership. The main part of the brick building may date from his ownership. The main part of the brick building is five bays long and two bays deep covered with an "A" roof which has had a 19th century gable added in the center of the front roof, and decorative shingle treatment added to the gables. There is also a 19th century porch on the south facade. Small brick chimneys in the gables were added during the 19th century remodeling. There is a one brick string course on the north facade where which may be the remains of a pent eave. The building is attached by a one story rypnen to a two story brick structure, called the slate quarters. This building has its attic joists exposed on the underside with a ceaded fascia board covering the ends of the joists. This feature seems to indicate an early 18th century date of construction and is the most outstanding feature of the entire complex.
