DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Little Bridge House is a small masonry dwelling built perhaps in three sections. The main part of the house is two stories in height and is three bays long by about two deep. It appears to be built of stone, but could also include other materials. A heavy coating of stucco and whitewash more than adequately hides the walls. The house has a gable roof with asphalt shingles. There is an interior brick chimney in the end of the second bay from the south gable wall. An enclosed front porch, one story in height conceals the entrances on the facade, but it would appear that there are two. The window sash is 6/6 and 2/2. At a later date a two story rear wing was added to the original structure. Most likely it served as a kitchen wing but there is no chimney visible today. On the south gable wall of the front part of the house is a bulkhead cellar entrance.
