House

Cecil County, MD

June 1998

Section 7.1

Addendum

The House is located in Cecil County, within the Fair Hill N.R.M.A., and off of Telegraph Road (Maryland route 273). When heading east it is on the right and between the Fair Hill Race Track and the Strahorn Curatorship.

The building is two and one-half stories tall, with a rear-facing "L"-shaped plan, and a one-story addition within the center of the "L". In addition there is a one-story front porch, half open and half enclosed, that spans the entire east facade. The foundation is uncut fieldstone with irregular courses throughout. On top of this rests the three-bay, wood frame constructed, upper structure. Windows are generally 1/1, with 2/2 sashes on the enclosed front porch. A large, gable wall, brick chimney is located on west facade of the structure. The entire exterior facades are covered with white asbestos shingles, while the roof has a covering of composition shingles.

Overall the structure appears to be in excellent condition with maintenance done regularly. Nothing seems to have changed on the exterior since the last historic sites survey was completed in the Fair Hill N.R.M.A. during 1979.
