DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The "Jones Inheritance" Farmhouse c. 1850 - 1860 is a two story five bay by one room frame house with ell kitchen on Barnes Corner Road just west of Farmington. The house faces south with an east/west gable orientation.

The weatherboard frame rests on a partial fieldstone foundation and is covered with a medium sloped slate roof. The front block consists of a side hall/parlor house with a later two story two bay by one room frame addition to the west. The front entrance is centrally located and a four panel door with heavily nolded and arched top panel is bordered by two light sidelights with a panel below and a three light transom above the door. Two first eastern 2/2 floor to ceiling sash light the main parlor and are flanked by louvered shutters. Two 6/6 sash light the second floor but are not aligned with the first floor openings. The western addition along with the entire front is covered by a single story shed roof porch supported by champered posts with paneled pinths and molded brackets. A bracketed frieze supports the slightly molded cornice. A stick balustrade stretches between the two eastern bay posts. The western two bays are enclosed with weatherboard siding. A later picture window has been cut through. The second floor is illuminated by two 6/6 sash windows with louvered shutters. A boxed cornice stretches above.

The west gable end has two 6/6 sash on each floor and two four pane attic lights which flank an interior end brick stove stack.

The north side of the house is partially covered by the slightly shorter two story three bay by one room kitchen wing. The east and west sides are covered by side story shed additions and porches. 6/6 sash windows light the first and second floor. The gable end brick stove stack is flanked by a single four pane attic window. A small boxed cornice covers the rafter ends and a plain bargeboard closes the gable end. The east side shed addition extends southward to partially cover the gable end of the main block. The shed is sheathed with novelty siding.

The interior was not seen.

The main frame barn, according to the owner was built in 1880. A earthern ramp provides entrance to the main floor. The boxed frame is sheathed with vertical board and batten and rests on a typical fieldstone foundation. A frame corn crib stands north of the barn, and a concrete block garage to the east of the corn crib.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The tract of land known today as "Jones Inheritance" is also recorded in land records as "Widow's Inheritance" and owned for a majority of the 19th century by the McCullough family. The construction of the farmhouse was gradual and occurred in at least three stages with the eastern half hall/parlor front block preceding any other section. An attached ell kitchen extends from the back to complete the overall form.
