CARR-182 3476 Uniontown Road Crossed Keys Tavern / Englar Store

3476 Uniontown Road is a good example of how a structure can change over a long period of time. According to J. Thomas Scharf, this is the third house that was built in the town, and it was constructed in 1804. From the land records, it appears that 1807-10 is a more accurate date. Earhart Cover sold the lot to his son Daniel Cover in 1807. Daniel Cover built a large wooden building on the site and sold the property to Barbara Myers in 1810 for $665. One year later she sold it to John Gildea. Gildea died shortly thereafter, and his estate records show that he operated the premises as a tavern. In 1816, the building was purchased by Moses Shaw and operated as the Crossed Keys Tavern. The tavern continued under operation by Philip Hiteshew, Peter Stem, John Lind and David Stouffer until 1842, when Stouffer converted the building to a tenement. In 1856, the building was purchased by William Hiteshew, who tore most of the structure down. What remained was encased in brick and enlarged to form a comfortable dwelling and store. It is in this form that the building remains today. The store was a profitable operation owned by William Hiteshew (1860-63), Charles Devilbiss (1863-67 and 1870-1899), Emanuel Formwalt (1867-70), and David Stoner (1899-1916). Philip Englar, Myers Englar, and Bud Haines operated the store during the twentieth century. The second floor of the store is a hall with 14-foot ceilings where the I.O.R.M. met until their lodge was built on the adjoining lot.
