Wrightson Jones House
St. Michaels
private

c. 1811-1820, c. 1850

This simple two-story frame house has had a more complex building history than one would guess from a cursory glance of the straightforward looking exterior. At least the first floor of the front block dates to the first decades of the nineteenth century since the structure was initially built as a single-story or story-and-a-half dwelling not unlike its immediate neighbors. During the third quarter of the nineteenth century the house was raised with the addition of a full second floor, and materials such as nine-over-six sash windows and raised panel doors were relocated throughout the house. At the same time of the raising, the first floor plan was evidently reworked to follow a side hall/double-pile arrangement.

Although this dwelling has some serious structural problems, the complex building history of the small house as well as its prominent corner location make this dwelling historically important to this early part of St. Michaels development.

Wrightson Jones is recorded in the Talbot County land records as the grantee of Lots 31 and 32 of Harrison's Square in 1811, and it is presumed he improved the property with the single story house that he either rented or occupied himself. The next deed reference to the site was not recorded until 1850 when Francis A. and Ellen J. Wrightson transferred ownership of the corner lot to Francis Jefferson. It is most reasonable that during the forty-year period that the Jeffersons owned the house that they raised the structure and reworked the interior. After the turn of the century the house was held primarily by the Dodson and Gardener families.

The Wrightson Jones house stands on the southeast corner of the intersection of Carpenters Alley and Locust Street in the center of St. Michaels, Talbot County, Maryland. The two-story, three-bay frame house faces west with the principal gable oriented on a north/south axis.

This simple two-story frame house has had a more complex building history than one would guess from a cursory glance of the straightforward looking exterior. At least the first floor of the front block dates to the first decades of the nineteenth century since the structure was initially built as a single-story or story-and-a-half dwelling not unlike its immediate neighbors. During the third quarter of the nineteenth century the house was raised with the addition of a full second floor, and materials such as nine-over-six sash windows and raised-panel doors were relocated throughout the second floor. At the same time of the raising, the first floor plan was evidently reworked to follow a side hall/double-pile arrangement.

Supported by a minimal brick foundation the two-story house is uniformly sheathed with vinyl siding and covered by a medium pitched asphalt shingle roof. A off-center single flue brick stack pierces the roofline. Attached to the back of the house is a single story, one-room plan kitchen.

The west (main) elevation is an asymmetrical three-bay facade with a side entrance in the north bay and a pair of four-over-four sash windows filling the adjacent two bays. The second floor is lighted by a pair of four-over-four sash windows. The eave to the roof is finished with a plain boxed cornice.

The north gable end elevation is marked by a symmetrical fenestration with two window openings on each floor and a single light illuminating the attic. Fixed in the western bay of both the first and second floor are nine-over-six sash windows, while the other three windows have six-over-six divisions. The gable end is flush.

The south side, on the other hand, is marked by an exterior brick stove stack and single six-over-six sash windows that light the first and second floor east of the stack.

The east (rear) facade is largely covered by the single story kitchen wing, however a six-over-six sash window along with a modern single pane window light the second floor. The kitchen is a two-bay by one room frame structure covered by a medium pitched gable roof. An interior end brick stack pierces the roofline. The eaves are finished with simple boxed cornices and the gable end is flush. The south wall of the kitchen is marked by a four-panel door and a six-over-six sash window, while the east gable is pierced by an off-center four-over-four sash window. The north side is pierced by a pair of six-over-six sash windows.

The interior of the house is finished with a mixture of early nineteenth and mid nineteenth century woodwork. The stair appears to date from the second period with a heavily turned newel post, a decorated stringer and a oval-profile handrail. The space under the stair is accessible through an old raised four-panel door in the back room that was reused from the earlier interior. An early raised six-panel door remains on the back wall of the house when entering the kitchen. Otherwise the woodwork on the first floor dates from the mid to late nineteenth century. There are a few reused six-panel doors on the second floor as well.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

SIGNIFICANCE

Although this dwelling has some serious structural problems, the complex building history of the small house as well as its prominent corner locations make this structure historically important to this part of St. Michaels. The first floor of the main block as well as some interior finishes date to the early nineteenth century. Not unlike several other houses in the immediate vicinity, the original single story house was raised to accomodate a second floor around 1850.

STORY AND SUPPORT

Wrightson Jones is recorded in the Talbot County land records as the grantee of Lots 31 and 32 of Harrison's Square in 1811, and it is presumed he improved the property with the single-story house that he rented or occupied himself.(34/684) The next deed reference to the site was not recorded until 1850 when Francis A. and Ellen J. Wrightson transferred ownership of the corner lot to Francis Jefferson.(63/305) It is most reasonable that during the forty-year period that the Jeffersons owned the house that they raised the structure and reworked the interior. After the turn of the century the house was held primarily by the Dodson and Gardener families.

YEAR: 1850 VOL: 63 PAGE: 305

FROM: Francis A. Wrightson and Ellen Jane Wrightson PRICE: $100

NOTES A lot on the corner of Locust Street and Carpenters' Alley. The demensions are 36'9" on Locust x 43' x 70'10" x 80' x 93' to Washington Melson x 150' on Carpenters' Alley.

The derivation of the lot is not given and from here back, the chain is confused

Ellen Jane Wrightson was Ellen Jane Graham. Thomas J. Harrison by his will (probated 1848) leaves his niece, Ellen Jane Graham, his leasehold estate in St. Michaels "being the lot leased to Denny Marshall, number 18 of the town plat also the lot adjoining the last, number 33 of the town plat also a half-lot adjoining the last number 32 of the town plat".

Lot number 18 is directly across Carpenter Street from the lot being considered here (#31); there is no lot 33 in Harrison's Square; lot 32 is the lot adjoining 31 and is part of this chain.

In any case, the land was part of "Joseph's Lot" (Stopper) held by the Harrisons since its acquisition by Joseph Harrison before 1778. It is probable that Joseph Harrison obtained title to "Stopper" - which he then renamed as "Joseph's Lot"- perhaps as early as 1768 by the process of "resurvey" through the Land Office at Annapolis. This data is not available at Easton and must be checked at Annapolis.

FROM: Joseph Harrison PRICE: lease

TO: Wrightson Jones

NOTES Lots number 31 and 32 in Harrison's Square. Begins 36' from the easternmost intersection of Locust Street and Carpenters Alley, on the north side of the street; running S 23 E 70 feet to the line of Braddock's Square; then with Braddock's line N 55 E 52 feet; then N 23 W 64 feet staight to the beginning.

No earlier mention of these lots has been found. From the description it would appear that the beginning of 36 feet from the corner eliminates the lot containing the structure under consideration but there is no mention of an occupant on the corner property. Perhaps Joseph Harrison already had a rental building there for the accomodation of the boatyard workers.
