Ockimey House
Unionville
Private

c. 1890

The Ockimey house is identified by residents in Unionville as one of the oldest remaining houses. Now vacant and deteriorating, the two-story wood shingled frame dwelling follows a one room plan with a one-room plan kitchen wing attached to the rear. Executed without attention to decorative details, this plain house is reflective of modest dwellings erected in black communities during the late nineteenth or early twentieth centuries.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Ockimey house stands on the east side of Unionville Road (MD 370) at the south end of the village of Unionville, Talbot County, Maryland. The two-story, one-room plan frame house faces west with the gable roof oriented on a north/south axis.

Built around 1890, the two-story, two-bay frame dwelling is supported by a minimal brick foundation, and it is sheathed with a uniform layer of wood shingles. The steeply pitched roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Attached to the back of the house is a two-story, one-room plan kitchen wing that is extended by a single-story shed roofed addition.

The west (main) facade is a two-bay elevation with a center entrance flanked by closely set two-over-two sash windows. The first floor is sheltered by a shed roof porch. Lighting the second floor are two six-over-six sash windows. The base of the roof is finished with a boxed cornice. Rising against the back wall of the main house within the rear wing is an internal brick stove stack.

The sides of the front block are simply finished with extended eaves and short returns at the base of the roof. Single windows pierce the gable end.

The east side (rear) elevation of the main house is fully covered by a two-story, one-bay rear wing that is extended by a shed roofed addition. Six-over-six sash windows pierce the first and second floors.

The interior was not seen.
