

The Marvin Chapel is a one and a half story steep gable roofed frame meetinghouse set on a hill overlooking valleys on the east and west sides of Woodville Road. The main entrance on the north side, is a five paneled door with triangular stain glassed transom located in the third bay in the west corner of the building. Two double hung gothic stained glass windows occupy the first two bays on the first level; similar windows occupy all four bays on the east and west sides of the building. A small cemetery is located south and east of the building.

The Marvin Chapel was built in 1888 on land donated to the church on March 5, 1889 by Nathan E. Clarey and his wife and Louis F. Detrick and his wife, "to be used as a church, house of worship, parsonage or burying ground." The church served the settlement of Plane Number 4, a railroad community which was the fourth plane on the railroad line between Baltimore and Point of Rocks. The railroad no longer runs through Plane Number 4, but a small community still exists in the area.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The main entrance, on the north side, is a five paneled door with triangular stain glassed transom located in the third bay in the west corner of the building. Two double hung gothic stained glass windows occupy the first two bays on the first level. A small arched window with decorative wood trim is located in the north gable.

Four gothic stained glass windows identical to those on the north side occupy the four bays on the east and west sides of the building and two more are located on the south side of the building.

The roof of the building is tin, finished by a plain boxed cornice. The entire structure is covered with white German beveled clapboarding. A small cinder block chimney is located on the exterior of the south side. A modern one story addition is located northeast of the Chapel. The south and east sides of the building are occupied by a small cemetery.

The church is still used weekly for Methodist services.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

According to the cornerstone, the Marvin Chapel was constructed in 1888. The land was donated to the church on March 5, 1889, by Nathan E. Clancy and his wife and Louis F. Detrick and his wife, "to be used as a church, house of worship, parsonage or burying ground."¹

The church served the settlement of Plane No. 4, a railroad community, which, according to local sources, was the fourth plane on the railroad line between Point of Rocks and Baltimore. The railroad no longer runs through Plane No. 4, but a small community still exists in the area.
