The David Taylor Farm is located on the east side of Friendsville-Addison Road approximately .6 mile south of Selbysport. Winding Ridge rises to the east and the Youghiogheny River flows in the valley to the west. The site includes a dwelling and a barn.

The house is a frame, two story, gable-roofed building on an uncoursed, rubble stone foundation. It is rectangular in plan, measuring three bays by two bays. The facade (W elevation) has a symmetrical three bay, center door arrangement, however its second floor windows have been blocked. A shed-roofed porch supported by six square posts extends across the full length of the facade. The rear elevation, also three bays long, has irregularly spaced openings. A shed-roofed porch with a small enclosure at its north end is supported by three turned posts. Both endwalls (N and S elevations) have had alterations in fenestration. The majority of windows are one over one sash with plain board surrounds and molded drip boards. Asbestos shingles cover the exterior walls and the roof is clad with slate tiles. Two interior brick chimneys with three course corbel caps are located on the ridgeline.
