DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

St. John's Lutheran Church Parsonage is located at the southern end of Pleasant Valley, just northeast of the church.

It is a 2-story, 3 bay by 2 bay cross-gable frame dwelling with a prominent facade (SE elevation) consisting of two bay windows on either side of a central entrance at the 1st story and three bay windows filling the 2nd story cross gable dormer. A small shed wing extends from the rear of the house. It contains an entrance which is off-set to the southwest end.

A 1-story, hip-roofed, porch runs across the facade, wrapping itself around the bay window projections. The porch roof is supported by 10 square, tapered wooden columns, which rest on a solid balustrade covered with square and bevel-cut wooden shingles. The porch is supported on piers at the southwest end which are covered by wooden cross-latticing. A garage has been dug at the northeast end. A gable-roofed portico with a wooden shingle archway extends from the center of the porch providing access to the porch and main entrance of the house.

Under the porch, two Doric columns support the central 2nd story bay window. This bay is covered with square-and bevel-cut wooden shingles.

The rest of the walls, as well as the roof, are covered with asphalt shingles. The house rests on a concrete foundation.

The windows are 1/1 sash except for the facade bay windows at the SE elevation which include tracery in the upper sash. All windows have plain board surrounds and drip-molded window heads. There are small diamond-paned windows at the attic story of all gable ends, except for the facade, which has a square window.

An interior brick chimney pierces the ridgeline, just slightly off-center to the southwest.

The site includes a frame garage.
