DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Wilson-Moxley House is a two-story frame house with a shed porch and aluminum siding built about 1870 and located with its related outbuildings about 1/4 mile northeast of the village of Kalmia in Harford County, Maryland. The main elevation faces northwest.

The house has two sections: a three-bay main part and a two story rear wing adjoining the first section perpendicularly. The main entrance is in the center bay of the front section. The shed porch is supported by chamfered posts with scroll sawn brackets. The porch roof is metal with standing seams. The two bay gable ends of the main section have brick interior chimneys. The rear wing has an enclosed porch in the angle between the two sections. Most windows are 1/1 and are probably replacements of the original sash. The foundation is stone and the gable roof is slate. The original weatherboard siding has been covered with aluminum siding.

A large frame bank barn with vertical siding, mortise and tenon construction, and a slate roof is located about 60 yards south of the house. The original part was erected in 1888 according to an inscription in the stone foundation. Low extensions in concrete block have been added in 1921 for milking operations. A metal silo is located on the north end of the barn.

A smaller frame wagon shed possibly built at the same time as the barn stands between the house and barn. Approximately facing this building to the east is a small rectangular frame wagon shed built by Edward Wilson in 1906 according to an interior inscription. Several modern outbuildings are also located near the old frame buildings.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Wilson-Moxley House and its outbuildings form a fairly complete agricultural complex of the late 19th century. The addition of aluminum siding and the enclosure of the rear porch are the only major exterior changes to the house since its construction. The complex stands in isolation in the middle of the tract, its environment unchanged from the 1870's.

The land is part of the "Rough Borough" tract which was owned by Josias and Mary Ann Wilson at least as early as 1847, when 32 acres of it was sold to free blacks. The possibility of an earlier house on the site cannot be discounted. The farm remained in the Wilson family's possession until 1926.

NOTE: Survey No. HA-181 was originally assigned to Adams-Harlan Farm Shop. Information on this structure has been consolidated with HA-180, Henry Harlan House.
