DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This 2-story, frame clapboard house with a center front gable is located on the west side of East Nobles Mill Road.

Set on a low stone foundation, the house is el-shaped: the main portion, 5 bays by 2 bays, on the east; and, on the west, a series of structures in a variation of the telescope plan - closest to the front, a 2-story 2 bay long and 1 room deep, gable-roofed wing; in the center, a 2-story shed-roofed addition, the latter 2 sections spanned by a shed-roofed porch on the south; and, on the westernmost end, a one-story shed-roofed addition. Windows have 6/6 sash and narrow beaded trim.

Facing east, the main section has exposed eaves and 2 interior end brick chimneys, with single projecting brick courses near the tops. A 1-story, hip-roofed porch spans the east facade, which has a central entrance and windows arranged symmetrically in the 5 bays; the center gable contains a round-arched window. The 1st floor bays contain casement windows, and the entrance with a cornice of pierced design above the door has a transom and sidelights. There is an entrance to the basement in the south end of this section, and another entrance in the center bay of the west side.

In the ell, the easternmost section with a raked cornice has an interior end brick chimney and an entrance in the center bay of the south side.

The rear or westernmost addition has an entrance in the center bay of the west end flanked by 6-light windows.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

A typical el-shaped clapboard farmhouse with a center front gable and a 5 bay-wide principal facade, the William Hopkins house was built around 1865 by William Hopkins, son of Joseph Hopkins. In that year William Hopkins paid $4025 for 78 acres of "Bachelors Good Luck" and "Jones Venture" owned by Joshua Hopkins.¹ This farm had been willed to Joshua and William Hopkins by their father, Samuel Hopkins, in 1832.²

When Joshua Hopkins took out a mortgage on this property, it was described as "subject to the life estate of Joseph Hopkins, a lunatic or idiot"³ so Joseph may have been a third son of Samuel Hopkins.

The 1858 Jennings & Herrick Map shows no structure in this location, but the 1878 Martenet's Map indicates that William Hopkins had a building in or near this location.
