DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This two story, frame farm house consists of two sections. It is built onto rubble stone foundations.

The main section of the house is 3 bays by 2 and faces south. The asphalt covered, gable flank roof has a corbeled brick chimney on the east inside end. The main entrance is in the center bay of the south side. It has a small, three sided foyer. Windows are 6 lights over 6 and have louvered shutters. A porch runs the length of the south side. It has four square columns and a hip roof.

Inside, this section has no fireplaces. Walls on both the east and west sides do, however, jut out, and in the attic chimney flues can be seen on both gable ends. In the cellar, a stuccoed stone fireplace support can be seen on the west side. The wall bordering the cellar stairs and the stair way to the second story on the first floor has an unusual curve, as indicated in the floor plan. A "rifle" closet is present above the stair way.

Hand hewn logs are visible in the cellar, some with large wood pegs.

The second section, also of frame, is located on the north side of the first section. It consists of two rooms on each floor. It has no cellar and no access to the attic. The floor level in this section is lower than in the first section and one must step down two steps. A window in the north west room on the north side has been covered up inside but is visible on the outer wall. An inclosed porch has been added to the north side of this section. It does not quite run the length of the north side of this section.

There are many outbuildings on this property but most are fairly new frame structures with block foundations. The barn, however, appears older. It is built into bank of a hill and has entrances on two levels. Foundations are of rubble stone and on the north side the rubble stone makes up the entire first elevation. The barn is frame and has newer frame additions built on to block foundations.

West of the farm house and close to the road is the tenant house, a one story frame building, 3 bays by 2. It also faces south. It has a gable front roof and a shed addition to the north. A shed roof porch runs the length of the south facade. Windows are 6 lights over 6.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This frame farm house is situated on the tract, Aquila's Inheritance, patented in 1699 by Aquila Hall. It is difficult to assess this home's age, though it is thought to have been built in the mid-nineteenth century. This house was owned and occupied by the Bailey Family for almost 100 years. There may be a family burial plot on the grounds: one of the present owner's children found a brass plaque in a wooded field at the present land boundary which reads: "Amos V. Bailey * born: March 22, 1840* died September 20, 1917".

The frame tenant house, situated close to the road (Level Road) was constructed in 1889 by the School Board and served as a one room school house until 1932 when the property reverted back to the Bailey family. The contractors were Spencer and McGonigal and it cost $720 to build. It was built at a time when construction costs were very low, and was among several built at that time.
