This little shotgun house is utterly plain except for two remaining scroll brackets on the front porch. It has recently changed hands and looks forward to a sprucing up.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This two and a half story shiplap-sided shot-gun house is at 200 Archer Street in the Town of Bel Air, Harford County, Maryland. It is unaltered in shape, but the shed kitchen to the rear (west) is now constructed of cement block. Originally it was probably shiplap, too. This house, while simpler than its altered neighbors, was once slightly more elegant. While its front gable has no ornament, the shed roofed porch has stock turned posts and carved brackets which raises it a step above its plainer neighbors. Its windows are 4/4 double-hung sash and a four panel door provides the entry in the south bay of the first story (east) elevation. Like all the other remaining houses of the period in the neighborhood, the center chimney has a corbelled cup. The cement block construction of the shed is probably attributable to deterioration.

BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This small workingman's house was probably built about the same time as its neighbors, probably by the Bel Air Land Company as a rental unit, since there is no evidence that the corporation sold that lot until 1918 when it sold its remaining unsold property to Alexander S. Bell (162/99). The house could have been built after 1918, but its condition and its similarity to its neighbors suggests an earlier date.

The Hays Addition to Bel Air was a part of the estate of merchant Thomas Hays who died in 1861.
