The Powers House
Lisbon
Private

circa 1860

The Powers House faces north on the south side of Route 144, just east of HO-445, the Warner House.

It is a three bay wide, one room deep, two story high, gabled roof (running east-west) frame building, resting on a stone foundation with a two story high, one bay wide, one bay deep, intersecting gable roof (running north-south) frame kitchen wing extending south from the east side of the building's south wall.

It is notable as one of the smallest houses in Lisbon, measuring approximately thirteen feet and features a central rectangular north entrance, vertically aligned and proportionally scaled, double-hung fenestration and front and back one story high porches.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Powers House faces north on the south side of Route 144, some 300 feet east of its intersection with the new Route 94. It is a three bay wide, one room deep, two story high, gabled roof (running east - west) frame structure, resting on a stone foundation, with square brick chimney inset into the middle of its south wall.

A central rectangular north entrance is flanked by single, double-hung windows with two-over-two lights, which are vertically aligned and proportionally scaled to two similar second floor windows above. A hipped roof one story high open porch, supported by four octagonal wooden posts and two flat pilasters, runs along the north elevation.

The west wall holds a single second floor, rectangular double-hung window with two-over-two lights and two square, four light attic casement windows. The east wall holds only two square four light attic windows. A two-over-two light second floor window is placed in the west bay of the south wall, while extending southward from the remainder of the south wall is a two story high, one bay wide, one bay deep, gabled roof (running north-south) frame addition. It holds a three light kitchen south window and six-over-six light second floor window with a square one light casement attic window above. The west wall of this addition holds a second floor six-over-six light window, while a one story high shed roofed addition extends westward along this wall and holds a rectangular south entrance onto a shed roofed porch.

BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Powers House is architecturally and historically significant to the village of Lisbon.

Architecturally it is notable as the smallest house in Lisbon, measuring approximately 13 feet in width. It is probable the building was constructed prior to 1860 as the 1860 Martennot Map and the 1878 Hopkins Atlas both delineate it. Today it forms an important architectural link between the Warner House west and the Buckingham House east, providing, by its modest scale and early character, a continuation of the streetscape of early buildings on the south side of Route 144.

Historically it was a part of Ellen Buckingham's holdings, noted on the Hopkins Atlas of 1878.

Today it is the home of a young professional couple, Joseph and Irene Fleischmann, who are planning to move to Westminster and sell the property.

Historically and architecturally noteworthy, it, in conjunction with the entire town of Lisbon, should be placed on the National Register of Historic Places.
