9. Description: The Sugarloaf Mountain Chapel sits on a bluff facing south. Constructed of locally fired brick laid up in common bond, this 2 bay by 4 bay structure has 2 symmetrically placed south doors. Before each door are three concentric brick steps. All windows are covered by tall green louvered wooden shutters. There is another door, identical to the two south doors, at the southwest corner. Each door and window is surmounted by a simple molded lintel. Near the apex of the south gable is a marble plaque which reads: S.L. Mountain Chapel 1861. The adjacent burying ground is surrounded by chain link. Behind the chapel, outside the fence, are approximately 12 graves of the Holland family.

10. Significance: The land upon which this chapel sits has been consecrated for church use since the late 18th century. A Methodist congregation used a chapel on the site throughout the first half of the 19th century. By 1860, however, the church trustees decided to replace the old chapel and Barnesville carpenter, William T. Hilton, was contracted to erect the new chapel which was completed in 1861. Materials for the building were obtained locally: wood was cut nearby; the bricks were molded and fired on adjacent property; and slate for the roof was obtained from Slate Quarry Road. For years after its construction it was the most imposing church in the area. The chapel was used by the Methodist congregation until 1938 when the trustees sold it to the owner of adjoining property. In recent years the chapel has once again been used as a church, as one of the United Council of Community Churches. The adjoining cemetery, consecrated in 1788, contains about 75 stones, many marked with the names of old families in the area.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Sugarloaf Mountain Chapel sits on a bluff on the west side of Route 109 facing south. Built on a fieldstone foundation, this small chapel is constructed of locally fired brick laid up in common bond. This two bay by four bay structure has two symmetrical wooden paneled doors, each surmounted by a three light transom window on the south (front) facade. Above each door is a second story window with louvered shutters. On the west and east elevations are tall window openings covered by wooden louvered shutters. At the southwest corner of the west wall a third doorway leads into the chapel. This is identical to the two doors on the south facade. Each door and window is surmounted by a wooden lintel with a simple triangular design. Near the apex of the gable on the south facade is a marble plaque which read: S.L. Mountain Chapel 1861.

The adjacent burying ground is surrounded by a chain link fence. It contains about 75 (mostly 19th century) stones, boxwood, trees, and some iron fencing demarking family sites. Behind the chapel, outside the fence, are approximately 12 graves of the Holland family.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The land upon which this chapel sits has been consecrated for divine services from the late 18th century. On August 25, 1788, Thomas Morton of Montgomery County, granted unto John Clark, Godfrey Waters, Samuel Hobbs, Basil Soper, Joseph Jones, John Wilson and John Bennet, as trustees, one acre of land.

"...for the Express purpose and intent of building a Preaching house thereon for the use of the people Call'd methodists..."

"to have and enjoy the said premises, whereon a house is Builded and known By the Sugarloaf Chappell, to preach or expound, God's holy Word therein, provided always, that the said persons preach no other doctrine than is Contained in Mr. Westley's Notes on the new Testament and his four Volumes of Sermons, and upon further trust and Confidence that said Trustees for the time Being shall permit a school to be kept for the Education of Youth when necessary in said house by such a Teacher as shall be approved off by said Trustees..."

The chapel was used by the congregation throughout the first half of the 19th century. When the church was incorporated, the trustees, meeting in the chapel on November 11, 1856 to draw up the act of incorporation, referred to the building as "...the church called by the name of the Mountain Chapel...being the place ordinarily used for public meeting of said church." (2)

By the year 1860, however, the trustees of the church decided to replace the old chapel. A deed confirming the ownership of the one acre lot by the "trustees of the Methodist Epsicopal Church of the Mountain Chapel" was executed by Nathaniel Holland, owner of the surrounding lands, on July 30, 1860. (3) William T. Hilton was contracted to erect the new chapel, which was completed in 1861. Materials for the building were obtained locally; wood was cut nearby, the bricks were molded and fired on adjacent property, and slate for the roof was obtained on Slate Quarry Road, in the valley of Bennett Creek two miles away.

The chapel was used by the Methodist congregation until 1938, when, the voting male members of the church being reduced to three persons, the trustees decided to sell it to George Otis Holland, owner of adjoining property. (4) In recent years the chapel has once again come into use as a church, this time as a member of the United Council of Community Churches. (see attachment sheet A)

The graveyard was consecrated in 1788 and terms of access to it were spelled out in various deeds and leases on the church property. It contains about 75 markers with the names of many families with a long history of settlement in the area.
