9. Description: This two & a half story L-shaped brick structure faces east on Mt. Ephraim Rd. Built upon fieldstone foundations with timber framing, the house is constructed of locally fired brick laid up in common bond. This simple structure once had a center cross gable, bracketed front porch with shed roof, & Victorian interior & exterior details. The wooden paneled front door is flanked by four light sidelights. The hipped roof is covered by slate roofing. Wooden lintels surmount the six-over-six light double hung windows. There are three chimneys which serve this house. There is a brick outbuilding to the NW of the house, which may have been used as a summer kitchen.

10. Significance: This house is important as an example of the building skills of William T. Hilton & as the remainder of the crossroads complex once known as Mt. Ephraim, situated on 13 acres deeded to Ephraim G. Harris in 1868. Harris capitalized on the Civil War trade, operating a general merchandising store at the intersection. In 1868 he decided to construct a residence reflective of his new-found affluence, and contracted with William T. Hilton & Sons, local carpenters, to build it. Most of the materials used were obtained locally (clay, slate, and timber). In 1888, Mt. Ephraim consisted of the house & outbuildings, brick store, restaurant, 2 frame dwellings, & blacksmith shop & stable. Only the house & its "summer kitchen" remain.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This two and a half story L-shaped brick structure faces east on Mt. Ephraim Road. Built upon fieldstone foundations with timber framing, the house is constructed of locally fired brick laid up in common bond. This simple structure once had a center cross gable, bracketed front one-story porch with shed roof, and Victorian interior and exterior details. The wooden paneled front door is flanked by four light side-lights. The hipped roof is covered by slate roofing. Wooden lintels surmount the six-over-six light double hung windows. There are three chimneys which serve this house.

The house originally had a central hallway flanked by two rooms, with heavy trim, ceiling plaster work, stair brackets and mantels. A third west (rear) ell room made this an L-plan house. A two story porch is located on the southwest corner of the house. The stairway is constructed of a curved chestnut railing and cedar newell post. The present owners modified the north and west rooms to accomodate their needs as well as the effects of poor management of the property.

The present owners extensively renovated the house in 1941-2. They employed the services of three prominent architects, Julian Berla, Wilhelm von Moltke, and Vernon de Mars; the garden was laid out by Daniel Kiley. At this juncture the earlier architectural character was lost.

Mt. Ephraim

The restaurant appears to have been basically a saloon, as evidenced by the inventoried stock of the restaurant, consisting of glasses, bottles, demijohns and 177 gallons of whiskey.⁴ Harris was post-master and farmer as well as storekeeper.

The 15 acres, and the various buildings thereon, were offered up by Ephraim Harris' family at a Trustee's Sale, on September 7, 1889. The land was purchased by Ida J. Dronenburg. The Dronenbergs continued to operate the store for awhile, but the business was moved to nearby Dickerson. A fire occurred in the main house in 1909, attested to by charred boards in the attic.

The house and property then passed through a number of owners until 1919, when Mt. Ephraim and 5.72 acres were sold to Francois P. Darriulat, President Theodore Roosevelt's fencing master, and coach of several college teams and U.S. Olympic fencing teams.⁶ Darriulat was the friend and fencing companion of Gordon Strong, owner of the adjacent property and Sugarloaf Mountain; Strong acquired a mortgage on the property and arranged its sale to Darriulat.

Frederick and Polly Gutheim purchased the property from Darriulat's estate in 1941. At that time, the front porch and many of the interior design details were removed during the course of remodeling the house, but were preserved in the form of recorded architectural drawings. During 1954-55, when the Gutheims lived in Washington, D.C., Mt. Ephraim was occupied by John Andrew Rice, a classical scholar, founder and one-time president of Black Mountain College, and a distinguished writer of short stories and books.

The present owner, Frederick Gutheim, is noted for his authorship of two major works of local interest, The Potomac (1949) and Worthy of the Nation, The History of Planning for the National Capital (1976). He is an internationally-known planning and historic preservation consultant and was professor of History and American Civilization at George Washington University serving as the first director of GWU's Graduate Program in Historic Preservation (1975-1978).
