Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The William Phair Property is a 2-story, 3-bay enlarged I-house on the north side of Spencerville Road in Spencerville, Montgomery County. Constructed circa 1860, the main block of the building has a single-pile, central passage plan, while the rear of the building has had at least two phases of additions. The first addition is a 2-story rear ell constructed circa 1900. The second addition, constructed circa 1980, completely covers the rear elevation and alters the form of the rear ell.

The structure has a side-gable roof covered with asphalt shingles. The house has two chimneys. The first is a brick interior chimney located in the west gable end of the main block, while the second chimney is a modern exterior, vinyl-sided chimney located on the north gable end of the original rear ell. The main block of the house is of log construction with vinyl siding, and it has a parged stone foundation. The rear additions are of wood-frame construction, with vinyl siding and a parged foundation. The windows are a combination of wood and vinyl, double-hung, casement and awning. The house has a hipped roof porch on the front elevation and a shed roof porch on the rear elevation. The front porch has an asphalt shingle roof supported by four chamfered posts with ornamental brackets. The simple, square porch railing and balustrade appear to be a replacement. The porch floor is wood with concrete block piers.

The south, or front facade has a central entryway consisting of a five panel wood door. The doorway is flanked by three small side-lights. The first story has two wood 2/2 double-hung windows, while the second story has three wood 2/2 double-hung windows vertically aligned above the first story openings. The southern slope of the roof has a glass skylight located near the west end.

The west elevation of the main block has a vinyl 1/1 double-hung window on the first story and two single-light casement windows located on the attic level. The west elevation of the circa 1980 rear addition has a vinyl 1/1 double-hung window on the first story and two vinyl 1/1 double-hung windows on the second story.

The rear, or north elevation of the main block is covered by two additions. The circa 1900, 2-story addition is flush with the east elevation, while the circa 1980 addition extends beyond the plane of the west elevation. The east section of the addition is the original rear ell and extends north beyond the modern western half. A 1-story shed roof porch with three wood posts extends along the western half. The exterior vinyl sided chimney is flanked by two vinyl 1/1 double-hung windows. To the west of the chimney are two sets of sliding glass doors. The second story has two vinyl 1/1 double-hung windows flanking the chimney, with a large vinyl fixed-light round-headed window with and a single vinyl 1/1 double-hung window to the west.

The east elevation has a wood 2/2 double-hung window on the first story and a vinyl 1/1 double-hung window on the second story of the main block. The attic level of the main block has two wood 4/2 double-hung windows. The east elevation of the circa 1900 rear addition has a projecting bay with a shed roof and vinyl 1/1 double-hung window. Also on the first story is a pair of vinyl 1/1 double-hung windows. The second story has a single-light, vinyl awning window and a vinyl 1/1 double-hung window.

7. Description (Continued)

The interior of the property was recently investigated by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC), who noted that the property retains the original plan and integrity of materials.

There are three outbuildings associated with this property. The first outbuilding is a small tenant house, with a front-gable roof covered with a corrugated metal roof. Constructed circa 1860, it is of wood-frame construction and is sheathed in asphalt shingles. The structure has a lean-to addition on the north elevation which has a carriage entryway and partition interior space used as a chicken coop. The building is located directly north of the house.

The second outbuilding is a garage/equipment building. It has a shed roof covered with corrugated metal and is sided with metal sheets. The metal exterior and roof were added after the building was damaged by fire. Constructed circa 1920, it is of wood-frame construction. The structure is located north of the house and barn.

The third outbuilding is a shed roof chicken coop. Constructed circa 1920, the building is of wood-frame construction with wood plank siding on the roof and walls. The structure is covered by vegetation and located north of the house and other outbuildings.

The property is located on the north side of Spencerville Road, with residential property to the south and east, a church to the west and open space to the north. The property is accessed by a gravel driveway which extends north from Spencerville Road toward the rear of the property. The drive passes the house on the east elevation and rises over a gentle slope before passing the first two outbuildings on their east elevations. The driveway turns west between the garage and chicken coop to give access to the open garage bays of the equipment building on its north elevation. The property retains its historic setting.

8. Significance (Continued)

new residents. Empty lots in the town were filled with modern residences, while the surrounding area retained a rural character. Many of the old working farms remain, however, the area continues to grow into one of the major suburban centers outside of Washington, D.C.

The original section of the main house on the William Phair Property is constructed of logs. Log buildings were a practical solution for shelter in a region rich with timber. The timber was readily available and often squared, split or faced before assembled into the building form. The logs are laid horizontally and intersect at the corners at corner posts or are notched with various types of corner timbering. The spaces between the logs are chinked with materials such as clay, stones or shingles. The exterior of the building was often sheathed with wood clapboards. Log buildings continued to be constructed even after the ascendancy of other construction techniques. The construction of log buildings continued into the late nineteenth century as a simple, economical housing type in rural locations (Stotz 1936:12 and Kniffen and Glassie 1986:173).

NATIONAL REGISTER EVALUATION:

The William Phair Property is eligible for the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion C. Within the context of Montgomery County, it is an early example of a classic I-house and a fairly unusual example of a 2-story log residence. While the structure has undergone some alteration, it retains the original plan and sufficient materials to convey its significance. The period of significance for the property extends from circa 1860 to 1947. The property is not eligible under Criterion A, as research conducted indicates no association with any historic events or trends significant in the development of national, state or local history. Historic research indicates that the property has no association with persons who have made specific contributions to history, and therefore, it does not meet Criterion B. Finally, the structure has no known potential to yield important information, and therefore, is not eligible under Criterion D.
