Addendum

The Woodlands Site and Smokehouse is located on the south side of Clopper Road (rt. 117). Easier access to the site is gained by heading to the Seneca Creek State Park Headquarters located at 11950 Clopper Road and following the marked "Woodlands Trail". The only structure left on this site is the remains of the Smokehouse, which is in complete ruins.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Woodlands smoke house is a one-story, gable-roofed outbuilding dating from the mid- (possibly early) nineteenth century. The structure is of handhewn pine logs with lime, sand, and fieldstone chinking. Corners are joined in a half dove tail construction. A low (roughly 4 1/2 foot high) entrance is located in the eastern facade.

Although the smoke house originally had a densely packed dirt floor, evidence of a later (circa 1930's) floor with milled floor joists and floor boards is seen along the northern gable wall. This suggests that the building was converted into a storage area in the twentieth century.

Hewn poles extend across the interior from gable wall to gable wall, presumably where the meat was hung.

A hole is cut out of the northern gable end to permit the proper curing of the meat. Both interior gable walls are severely charred as further proof that the outbuilding was once used as a smoke house.

The corrugated tin roof replaces an earlier roof. All timber roofing materials are milled.

The structure is in poor condition, suffering from extensive wood rot in the pine logs. Vines and trees have intruded upon the structure.

Near the smoke house are several twentieth century board and batten sheds in various stages of collapse. Other noticeable remains of the Woodlands estate include an ice pit, located roughly 200 feet north-east of the new visitor center complex and a water wheel found along the north bank of a small stream south of the complex. The remains of a mill race (different than Clopper Mill on the Great Seneca Creek) lie nearby on Long Draught Creek. Archeological diggings were conducted here. (See Joe McNamara's The Archeological Resources of Seneca Creek State Park, of September 1, 1977.)

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Woodlands smoke house, located about 100 feet northwest of the new Seneca State Park visitor center complex, is one of two remaining structures/ruins from the Francis Cassatt Clopper estate, Woodlands. (See Mont. Co. 19-21.)

The main house was burned by vandals about 1968 and subsequently razed by the Department of Natural Resources.

This was the site of the old Clopper mansion known as "Woodlands". The house was burned by vandals about 1968, and the site was subsequently razed by the Park Service. Some outbuildings remain; including a log meathouse (deteriorating.) (See old photos: HABS, MCHS)

The remains of a mill race (different than Clopper Mill on Great Seneca) lie nearby on Long Draught Creek. Archeological diggings were conducted here, but little information resulted.

sive improvements and adding modern conveniences.

William Dinwiddie had a distinguished career as a newspaper editor and was a war correspondent in Manchuria for the New York World, and Harpers Magazine during the Russian-Japanese War in 1904. He then sought retirement in the United States. (See Avon story.) He enjoyed Greenbough for only a few years, leaving two children by a former marriage and his widow.

Alice Brooke Dinwiddie died on August 26th 1961, and the old home, reduced to a few acres surrounding the house, was left to her brother Allan F. Brooke and his wife Lilly Brooke. Their modern home, built some years ago, on some acreage from Allan's birthplace, "Willow Grove,"—is only a few hundred yards, from "Woodburn" on the "Batchelors Forest" road, to Sandy Spring.

On October 15th, 1961, the historic old "Kirk" homestead, was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. R. Louis Hatzes, from Allan & Lilly Brooke—to which they have moved with their family of four young children. Mr. Hatzes is General Agent of the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Company, one of the older companies—founded in Philadelphia in 1878.

Mrs. Hatzes, named Maylon, was married to Mr. Hatzes in September 1950—and the children are, Nanette, aged 9; Robert L. Jr., aged 8; Therese, aged 5 years; and Helene age 2 years. This family will be a most valuable acquisition to the neighborhood, although they have lived in Montgomery County for 17 years.

The low structure to the extreme left of the long house, built of logs, is sheathed inside to a height of four feet on the first floor and on the slope of the rafters on the second floor. It has a stone fireplace seven feet wide, four feet high, and three feet deep with a brick hearth, and the old crane is still in place. Exposed hand-hewn oak beams are in the ceiling.

The main house which faces the south has two halls and two stairways. The front hall enters from the right or east end of the house; and another, from the porch in the center part of the main house.

Woodlands

IN the western-central part of Montgomery County stands the brick house which is associated with some interesting and talented persons. With few interruptions to its serenity since the War between the States, the old manor house seems to doze in solitude. "The groves were God's first temples." In the ancient village of Clopper on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad two miles northwest of Gaithersburg, it stands serenely isolated.

From 1811 until after 1870 there was much activity around this old plantation of the Cloppers and Huttons. The village acquired its name from Francis Cassatt Clopper who, in 1811, purchased a plantation of nearly 500 acres upon part of which the old house stands. Clopper was born in Baltimore in 1786. He married Ann Jayne Byrne, a lady of Irish lineage, in 1811, and built the large right-hand main part of the mansion in 1812.

As his name indicates, Francis Cassatt Clopper, was related to Alexander J. Cassatt, for many years the powerful president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and to Mary Cassatt, one of America's outstanding painters and etchers between 1890 and 1926, the time of her death. As shown by a date, 1834, and initials, F.C.C., cut into a stone of the old mill wall, Clopper built a grist mill that year. There was also a woolen mill on the farm which manufactured blankets used by the armies of the Civil War. The town's population greatly increased with the arrival of the Metropolitan Branch of the Baltimore and Ohio, after 1873. This event introduces the appearance upon the scene of the dominating personality of our story, William Rich Hutton.

Hutton was born in Washington, D. C., in 1826, a son of James and Salome (Rich) Hutton. His father was employed by the Navy Department. He was fortunate to have been a student at the famed school of Benjamin Hallowell in Alexandria, where his special training in mathematics, surveying, and drawing prepared him for the distinguished career which lay ahead. Young Hutton was also fortunate to have an uncle, William Rich, a botanist of some reputation, who in 1846 was appointed paymaster, with the rank of major, for volunteer troops being sent to occupy California. Rich appointed his nephew a paymaster's clerk, and they arrived in California in April, 1847. Young Hutton, then began a most interesting career of paying off troops, surveying, and sketching, which culminated in his being one of the top men in his field, gaining international recognition.

Hutton returned to the East in 1853. In 1855 he married Mary Augusta Clopper, daughter of Francis C. and Ann B. Clopper, of Woodlands.

Only a few of the important engineering assignments carried out by William R. Hutton can be referred to here. Just after his marriage he served as Assistant Engineer, until the work was suspended by the War in 1861, on the Washington Aqueduct (including Cabin John Bridge) under Montgomery C. Meigs. In 1865, he was chief engineer of Annapolis Water Works; 1869-1874, Chief Engineer on the C & O Canal; 1871-1874, Chief Engineer of Western Maryland Railroad. He received a diploma of honor from the Paris Exposition in 1878 for the design of locks on the Kanawha Canal. He was Consulting Engineer of Croton Aqueduct in 1886, and in 1886-1889 was designer and Chief engineer of the Washington Bridge over the Harlem River in New York.

During Hutton's stay in California, 1847 to 1853, while acting as paymaster's clerk and carrying on surveying for a number of towns in that state, he made remarkably artistic and true sketches of scenes in the area. Ninety-five of these sketches are now housed in the Huntington Library at San Marino, California. They were purchased from his daughters, Mary and Rose Hutton, a few years ago.

Hutton is reported to have only panned enough gold in the '49 rush to make his wife's wedding ring, although he was making sketches all around Sutter's Mill. Hutton was a member of engineering societies in France, England, and this country, and for many years was active in the Century Association of New York. He died at Woodlands in December, 1901, and the Century Association paid him a tribute which states in part: "He had a capacity for sustained and independent intellectual labor—a taste for many varieties of literature, and an unfailing gentleness, sympathy, and modesty of manner."

In the quiet little St. Rose Catholic Church cemetery near Woodlands, the several members of the family who have passed on lie buried in well-tended graves. Francis C. Clopper's grave is near that of his wife, and on his marker is the statement, "Blessed art thou, Oh Lord. Thou hast taught me Thy justifications." William Rich Hutton's and his wife's tombstones stand nearby.

The old manor house is filled with numerous antiques, many of them being very handsome and valuable. One piece of especial interest is a grandfather's clock, brought to America before 1800, by the parents of Ann Jayne Byrne. After Ann's marriage to Clopper, the works only of this clock were brought to Montgomery County, and a new case of walnut was built for it. This clock has been running continually for over 150 years at least, and when the author called at Woodlands recently, it was exactly on time!!!!

A direct Hutton descendant, wrote the Author, on October 9th, 1961 as follows; since the publication of the First Edition of my book, these things have taken place at "Woodlands":—

1953—The Maryland State Park & Planning Commission purchased 255 acres for a Park area, paying $100.00 per acre.

May 28, 1953—Mary Augusta Hutton passed away.

November 6, 1956—my Mother, Helen Schmidt Caulfield, passed away.

December 29, 1959—my Father, John Paul Caulfield, passed away.

November 26, 1960—Elizabeth Hutton Caulfield, passed away.

November 30, 1957—I, Helen Caulfield Madine, 19 years old, married James John Madine, 24 yrs. old, at St. Rose Catholic Church, Clopper; the Church has been attended by her family for 135 years. Mass was previously offered at "The Woodlands."

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. J. Madine have two young daughters. They are Helen Schumann and Patricia and were baptized in St. Rose Church wearing the beautiful hand embroidered baptismal dress worn by each of the infants since Mary Augusta Clopper in 1826, down through the present 6th generation children.

Aunt Rose Hutton is in a nursing home in Sugarland. She was 93 years old April 3, 1961; the last of the Hutton sisters.

Mr. & Mrs. Joseph Madine Sr. are occupying the homestead at present—parents of James John Madine.

Woodlawn

SHELTERED alike from the heat of the summer's sun and the cold blasts of winter by many varieties of giant evergreen and hardwood trees, Woodlawn is quite likely to escape the notice of passing motorists. But upon entering the grounds surrounding the old brick manor house, one is much impressed with the calm atmosphere of dignity which pervades the ancient homestead. Here one senses a home of people of note. One feels that those old walls sheltered persons who in past decades had an appreciation of the best in country living, and surely must have made their real contributions to the fullness of that way of life.

In our story about Norwood just across the fields, we made the acquaintance of Richard (Marse Dicky) Thomas, the master builder, who built this substantial brick house also. With his vast lands he was not the kind of father to allow any of his children when they married to suffer for want of a suitable home. He built Woodlawn, we believe in 1774, shortly after his son, Samuel, married Mary Cowman. He had imported English bricklayers to rebuild his own home Cherry Grove which had burned down in 1772. In both houses he no doubt used the same expert artisans to lay up the bricks which we are sure were made locally.

The will of Richard Thomas was admitted to probate in December, 1806, and in that voluminous document he bequeathed one-seventh of his vast property to "the children of my son, Samuel Thomas, deceased." And this Samuel had a son Samuel Thomas, born November, 1776. History records that a Samuel Thomas had a school at Woodlawn before 1819. However, he and his wife, Anna, were called to Fair Hill, in Olney, to direct the school of that name inaugurated by the Baltimore Meeting of Friends in 1819.

Within two years both Anna and Samuel Thomas passed away, and as a result, Woodlawn was purchased in 1822 by Dr. William Pennell Palmer of Brookeville. He was a notable figure in the county of his adoption for fifty-five years after coming here in 1815 from Pennsylvania. He was born in 1792, and as a young man made several voyages to England and to China as a captain's clerk. Palmer graduated from the Medical School of the University of Pennsylvania in 1815. He had the rare privilege of "sitting at the feet of" the illustrious Dr. Benjamin Rush, head of that pioneer medical
