Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The subject house faces west on Wall Street. It sits on a spacious lot with mature trees and dogwoods at sides and rear. Shrubs soften the front foundation line. Chain link fencing is placed along the front and perimeter gates at front walkway and driveway. A front-gable, one car clapboard garage is located off the northeast corner of the house, accessed by a driveway from Wall Street.

This frame, three bay-by-three bay symmetrical, 1-1/2 story, rectangular bungalow with mitred bays on each side has central dormers on all facades. The foundation is brick. The moderately pitched, pyramidal-hipped roof has a pointed skylight along the spine, deep upturned eaves, and is covered with asphalt shingles. There are two corbelled top interior brick chimneys on the rear.

This house was designed by Franklin H. Karn in 1913 in the new "California bungalow" style detailed with flared eaves, front verandah, dormers with echoing roofs, and a unique original skylight at the point of the hipped roof. Windows are uniformly 9/1 double hung sash with plain surrounds, projecting sills, and drip caps flanked by wooden louvered shutters. The house is sheathed in wood lapped siding set off by vertical cornerboards and a wide friezeboard with lower lip. The front has a full-width front verandah supported by four square columns.

The three-bay west (front) facade is rigidly symmetrical. The house is accessed by a central front concrete walk leading to a double sided-entry brick staircase with wrought iron railing, not original to the house. The heavy cornice of the nearly flat roof is supported by four massive, capitaled, square columns set on low brick piers. The verandah has a cement slab floor. A window is in both 1st and 3rd bays. The wide center bay is framed by roof columns and contains a single glass panelled wood exterior door with flanking long single pane sidelights. A pyramid-hipped, flared eave dormer with two 1/1 double sash windows, shaded by an aluminum awning, is centered directly above the entry bay. Similar side dormers repeat the flared corner roofline slightly above and behind while the front dormer peak is repeated in the end of the rectangular skylight on the roof spine.

The three-bay north facade has two separate windows in the left bay, one smaller than the rest, a three sided, three-windowed bay which extends out to and is covered by the roof overhang, in the center, and a pair of windows in the right bay.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

Significance

The Wootton house is an example of the California Bungalow style. Its design evokes the Indian antecedents of this design. The Wootton family name spans 200 years of Rockville area history and is associated with this building.

History and Support

Dr. Washington Waters and his wife Elizabeth (nee' Yearley) built this house on the land adjoining the Yearly residence; they had purchased the south half of lot 17 and the north half of lot 16 in "R.T. Veirs' Addition to Rockville." 1/ The California Bungalow was an innovative new style characterized by low pitch, broad eaves shading the spacious verandah, and ground-hugging mass. It was inspired by and named after similar houses in India and had been recently introduced in California by the Greene brothers. 2/ The subject house displays these typical features, and also includes such modifications as dormers and shallow bay windows on the north and south elevations.

William H. and Marguerite "Daisey" Beard purchased the house in 1915, using it for a summer home. Marguerite lived here until the construction of her new house one block east at 19 Williams Street in 1927. 3/

Albert Wootton was a descendant of Dr. Thomas Sprigg Wootton, who was instrumental in the formation of Montgomery County in 1776 and a member of the Maryland House of Delegates from 1779 to 1786. Dr. Wootton's brother, Richard Wootton, owned extensive estates west of Rockville which included parts of land grants "Exchange and New Exchange", "John's Last Shift; and "Rocky Point Fortified". 5/ Parts of these lands became the site of this subdivision a hundred years later.

Attachment 7.1

The three-bay east (rear) facade has one window, left bay, two exterior doors in the center, one to the basement and one to the first floor, and one window in the right bay. A portico formed by three square capiteled columns shelters the entrances which are reached by a three wooden steps to a stoop surrounded by post and three rail and post balustrade. A concrete slab surfaces the area under the portico and provides the base for the columns. A dormer is centered on the roof, and one chimney rises near the peak of the roof, the other slightly lower and to the right.

The three bay south facade is similar to the north except that it has paired windows in the left bay, a bay window in the center, and one window in the right. A dormer is centered above.
