9. Description: This two story beige frame house with cellar and attic faces west onto Capitol View Avenue. It has a gabled roof with an inside chimney on the north end and patterned shingles under the north and south eaves. A one story shed roofed porch runs along the entire three bay front of the house and continues around across the two bay south side.
- The house, which is basically rectangular, has a small rectangular kitchen addition covering half of the rear of the structure. The rear or east facade also contains the only entrance to the full square cellar. The foundation is of stone and block construction. Windows throughout the house are two-over-two double-hung.
- The interior is a side hall plan, entered from the right side of the front porch. The entrance hall contains the stairs going up. Behind the hall is the dining room and behind that is the kitchen wing which may originally have been a porch. The entire north side of the main floor is the living room with its fireplace. Upstairs are three bedrooms and a bath.
10. Significance:
- This charming frame and shingle house was one of a number built around 1900 in Capitol View Park, a subdivision developed along the B & O railroad between Kensington and Forest Glen in Montgomery County. The original subdivision plat was surveyed in 1887 for Mary Harr.
- This house first appeared in the Tax Assessment Records in 1901, under the name of J.B. Gibbs, and was assessed at $700. In 1903 the property came into the hands of Mary M. Jones,<sup>2</sup> and it is with the Jones family that the house was associated until the 1940s. Increases in assessment in 1918 and again in 1923 indicate additions to the original structure. The Jones family owned quite a bit of land in the area at one time and were prominent in the community. Parker Jones, who lived in this house, held an important position with the highway department. According to a former neighbor, it was Parker Jones who was responsible for the placement of Capitol View Avenue away from its intended location in front of his house to a course curving away from his house and around a neighboring dwelling, the Barbee house.<sup>3</sup>
- In 1952, after several intermediate owners, the property was purchased by the present owner, Osker Craig Reynolds, who rents the house to a tenant.
