Description of Property and Eligibility Determination (Use continuation sheet if necessary and attach map and photo)

The resource is a modest farmhouse constructed circa 1912. The resource demonstrates some elements of Queen Anne style architecture including an asymmetrical T-shaped plan and variegated exterior cladding. The resource was identified and surveyed by Susan Pearl in 1984, but no determination of eligibility has been made to date.

The resource is associated with and retains sufficient integrity to illustrate late nineteenth and early twentieth century agriculture in Prince George's County. It is a smaller subdivision of the large Magruder family holdings, and members of the Magruder family occupied it during the historic period. The property retains agricultural outbuildings including a chicken house and stable. In addition, while only 6.68 acres (as opposed to its original 105 acres), the property retains sufficient setting to illustrate its agricultural history (Criterion A).

The resource is not known to be associated with the lives of persons significant in the local, state, or national past (Criterion B). The resource was altered on the interior as a result of a 1979 fire, but it retains sufficient exterior architectural integrity to embody the characteristics of modest rural residential architecture of the period (Criterion C). Finally, the property is not likely to yield information important in local, state, or national prehistory or history (Criterion D).

Because the resource meet Criteria A and C, the Magruder-Brannon House is recommended as eligible for the National Register of Historic Places.

The recommended boundary for the Magruder-Brannon House is its current tax parcel (Map 45 Parcel 138) containing 6.68 acres. This property is the portion of the original 105-acre property which retains integrity. The land area to the south and west has been altered chiefly by the construction of Enterprise Road (MD 193) between 1965 and 1993.

PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY
HISTORIC SITE SUMMARY SHEET

Survey #: P.G. #70-30 Building Date: ca. 1912

Building Name: Magruder-Brannon house

Location: 12100 Annapolis Road, Glenn Dale, Maryland 20769

Private/Residence/Occupied/Excellent/Inaccessible

Description:

The Magruder-Brannon house is an asymmetrical T-shaped two-story frame cross-gable house (ca. 34' x 54') with the principal facade to the east. The main entrance is in the first bay of the east facade, and leads into a one-story entryway built into the southeast corner of the T. The leg of the T has in its east gable end a semi-octagonal bay on both stories. The north-south section has a two-story semi-octagonal bay at its north gable end, and a one-story semi-octagonal bay at its south gable end. Three 2/2 double hung sash windows fill the bays at each location. Surrounding the east gable end is a one-story porch. The covering of the house is German siding on the first story and lapped shingle on the second story. The roof (new) is of synthetic shingle and the foundations are poured concrete. The interior of the original house consists of three rooms on each story; architraves have bulls-eye corner block moldings. To the rear (west) there was a large kitchen addition, which was destroyed by fire in 1979; it has been replaced by a new two-story kitchen addition, including features compatible with the main house.

Significance:

This house, built by Arthur H.S. Magruder, is a landmark in the Glenn Dale area; although it has been altered in recent years, it still embodies characteristics of a modest early twentieth century farm residence. It stands on part of the old Thomas Magruder homestead which was devised in 1912 to Arthur H.S. Magruder. The subject house was probably begun in that year. Tax assessments indicate that the house was built in stages, with the large north-south section probably finished first. The land passed out of the Magruder family in 1946. The present owners have carefully attempted to retain the early twentieth century features of this house and its setting. As a result, it is a landmark in the still rural Glenn Dale area.

Acreage: 6.68 acres

The Magruder (Brannon) house is a T-shaped frame crossed-gable house, fronting on the east, with German siding on the first story and modern wooden wall shingling on the second. Three-sided bay windows embellish both stories of the north and east gable ends, and the first story of the south. A modern porch surrounds the entire east gable end; the main entrance, through an ornately carved 14-panel door, is at the south end of this porch.

A modern one-story kitchen addition on the west side of the house was destroyed by fire in the spring of 1979, and the owners are presently replacing it with a two story addition.

This is an old Magruder house, which stands on part of a tract which belonged to Thomas Magruder (1779-1830). The Magruder homestead comprised 211 acres of Darnall's Grove, surrounding what is now the intersection of Enterprise Road and Rte.#450, and included the tavern operated by Magruder's grandfather, Thomas Baldwin, during the latter part of the 18th century. The homestead passed to Magruder's son, the prominent attorney Caleb Clarke Magruder (1808-1884), who extended the property to 300 acres. It lay in three election districts: Bowie, Queen Anne and Kent. In the 1890's the Bowie parcel was deeded to Dr. Ernest P. Magruder, and it was probably at that time that the house was built. The property remained in the possession of Dr. Magruder's brother until 1946.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Magruder-Brannon house is an asymmetrical T-shaped two-story frame cross-gable house (ca. 34'x54') with the principal facade to the east. The main entrance (through an ornately carved 14-panel door, not original) is in the first bay of the east facade, and leads into a one-story entryway built into the southeast corner of the T. The leg of the T has in its east gable end a semi-octagonal bay on both stories. The north-south section of the house has a two-story semi-octagonal bay in its north gable end, and a one-story semi-octagonal bay in its south gable end. Three 2/2 double hung sash windows fill the bays at each location. Most windows have shutters. Surrounding the (principal) east gable end is a one-story porch.

The covering of the house is German siding on the first story, and lapped shingle on the second story. One course of cut shingles forms a sort of a decorative string course between first and second stories. The roof (new) is of synthetic shingle, and the foundations are poured concrete. There is a basement under the north-south section of the main house. There is a (central) brick chimney in the north-south section.

The interior of the main house consists of three rooms on each story; door and window architraves have bulls-eye corner block moldings. Into the northeast corner of the T, a bathroom addition has been built on both stories. To the rear (west) of the house a large kitchen addition was built (probably in the 1920's). This addition was destroyed by fire in the spring of 1979; it has been replaced by a new two-story kitchen addition. Although this rear addition cannot be seen from the front of the house, the owners have attempted to make it architecturally compatible with the main house: e.g. its exterior is wooden German siding; two one-story three-window bays on the west facade, and one six-window bay on the south facade of the addition, reflect the treatment of the north, east, and south gable ends.

The 1979 fire destroyed much of the parquet flooring in the main house. When this flooring was removed, narrow-width pine floor boards were revealed underneath; these original floors have been restored.

To the west of the house, several outbuildings stand on the 6.68 acre lot: a garage (now connected to the house by an open arcade), chicken house, and stable. A tenant house directly west of the main house was destroyed by fire ca. 1976.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

This is the Arthur H. S. Magruder house, a landmark in the Glenn Dale area; although altered in recent years it still embodies the characteristics of a modest early twentieth century farm residence. It stands on part of a tract which belonged to Thomas Magruder (1779-1830). The Magruder homestead comprised 211 acres of Darnall's Grove, surrounding what is now the intersection of Enterprise Road (#556) and Defense Highway (#450); it included the home of Thomas Magruder (P.G. #70-19) as well as the 18th century tavern and home of Thomas Baldwin (grandfather of Thomas Magruder), demolished in 1898. This 211-acre homestead passed to Magruder's son, the prominent attorney Caleb Clarke Magruder (1808-1884). The property lay at the 1 intersection of three election districts: Bowie, Queen Anne and Kent.

This property passed to C.C. Magruder, Jr., and at the end of the 19th century was divided by him among his sons. In 1912, he deeded a 10-acre parcel of the land in the Bowie district on the west side of the Collington-Marlboro Road, to his son, Arthur H. S. Magruder; the subject house was probably begun in that year. Tax assessments indicate that the house was built in stages, with the north-south section probably built first (it is the only section with a basement), the east leg, and the second story soon after, and finally (by 1923) the one-story kitchen addition² to the rear (west). The east porch may have been added somewhat later.²

In 1916, Arthur Magruder purchased the rest of the family property in the Bowie District (ca. 100 acres) which adjoined his 10-acre parcel. On this land, on the east side of the road, he built a brick home for³his son; it is now part of the nursery complex just across Defense Highway.

The present owners have carefully attempted to retain the early twentieth century features of this house and its setting. As a result, this is a landmark in the still-rural Glenn Dale area; although altered to a certain extent as a result of the 1979 fire, it still embodies the characteristics of this style of modest rural residential architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The house is a 2-story frame structure with German siding and sits on a poured concrete foundation. It is basically a T-shaped 2-story building with two 2-story octagonal bays on the south and east facades. There is a 1-story octagonal bay on the west facade. There have been two rectangular additions to the south facade; the one on the west is 1-story while the one on the east is 2-story. In addition, a porch runs across the entire south facade. The most recent change to the building is a 1-story rectangular addition to the north facade.

The house possesses a central chimney. Two-over-two windows are the rule throughout, except for the addition on the north facade. Interior trim indicates a construction date between 1880 and 1900 for the main part of the building.
