

Property Address 10907 Frank Tippett Road, Cheltenham, Prince George's County
Owner Name/Address Gary McLean, 10907 Frank Tippett Road, Cheltenham, MD 20623
Year Built circa 1890

Description:

The Cheltenham Dwelling was previously surveyed as part of the Prince George's County Inventory of Historic Sites in 1974 and by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission in 1985. Since the time of the survey in 1985, the house has not changed. There is a 1-story, wood-frame gable-roof shed on the property, located southwest of the house. The shed was not mentioned in the previous form.

National Register Evaluation:

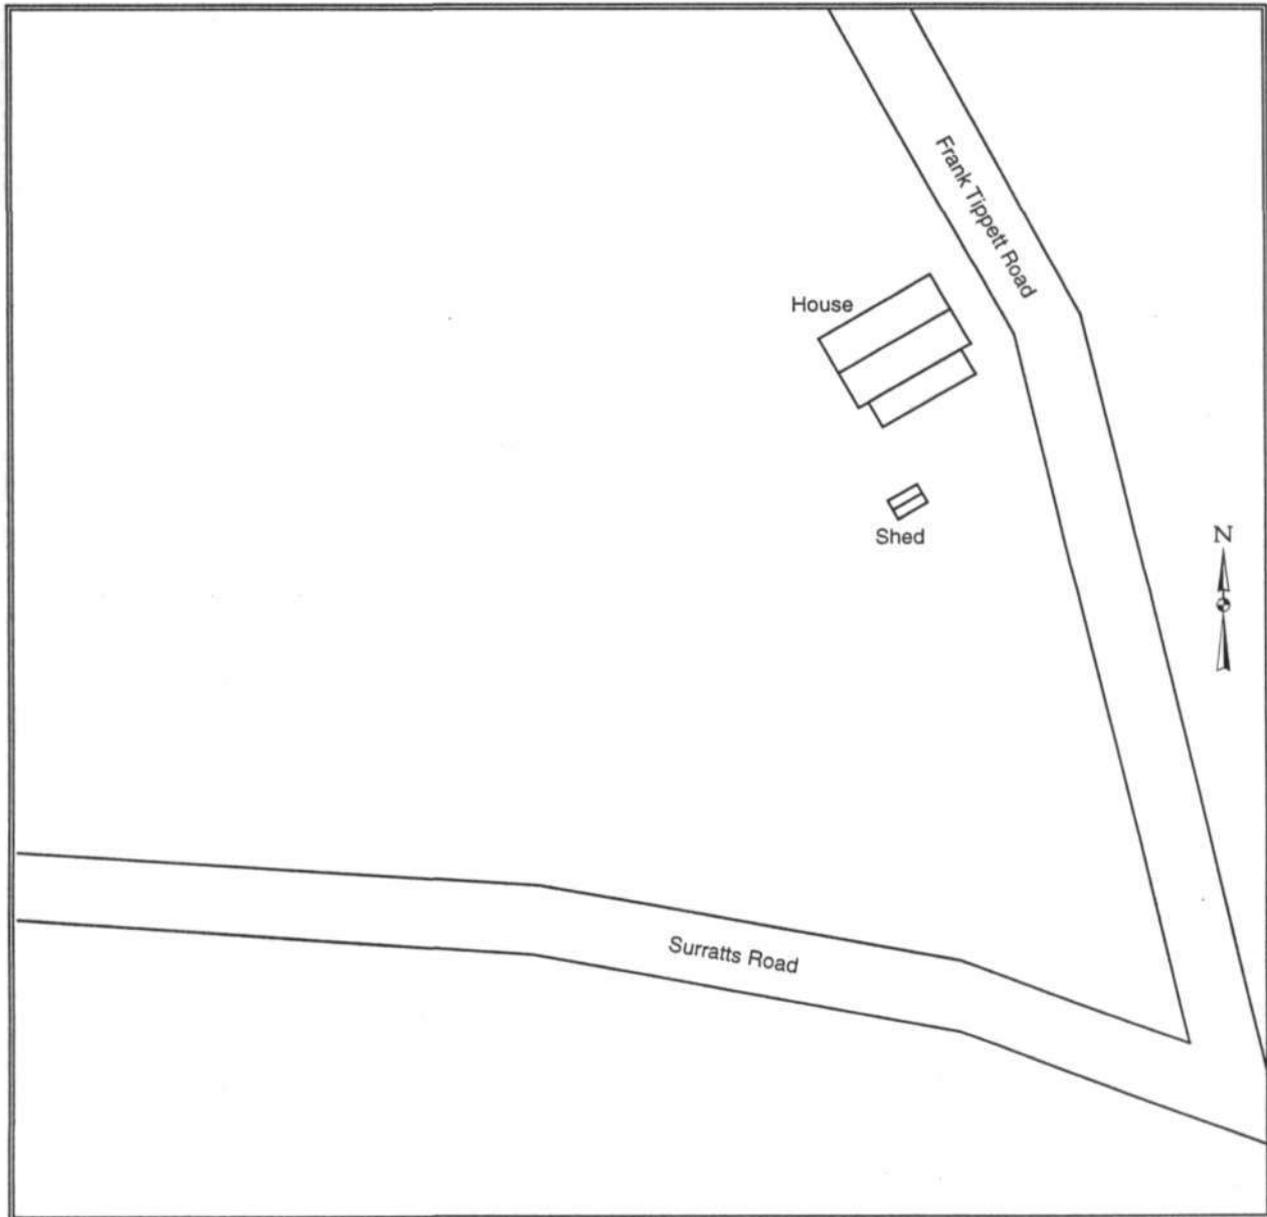

There was no evaluation of National Register eligibility conducted at the time of the previous surveys. Constructed circa 1890, the Cheltenham Dwelling is not eligible for the National Register of Historic Places. The property is not eligible under Criterion A, as research conducted indicates no association with any historic events or trends significant in the development of national, state or local history. Historic research indicates that the property has no association with persons who have made specific contributions to history, and therefore, it does not meet Criterion B. It is not eligible under Criterion C, as it is an undistinguished example of a vernacular front-gable dwelling. The building has been altered with a side addition and asbestos siding. According to the 1974 survey, the house was once associated with the Old Cheltenham Store, which has since been demolished and replaced with a modern house. Therefore, the property no longer retains its integrity of feeling or association.

HISTORIC SITE SUMMARY SHEET

Survey #: P.G. #82A-18 Building Date: ca. 1890's
Building Name: Old Cheltenham Dwelling
Location: 10907 Frank Tippett Road, Cheltenham, Maryland

Private/Residence/Occupied/Good/Inaccessible

Description

The Old Cheltenham Store was a shallow pitched, one-and-one-half-story gable-roofed frame building whose four-bay east gable end, sheltered by a shed roofed porch, fronted on Frank Tippett Road in Cheltenham. Identified by site surveyors in 1974, this building has since been demolished, and a modular home now stands in its place. Adjoining this site to the north is a two-story gable-roofed frame dwelling, once part of the same 7-1/2 acre property; its gable end faces roughly east toward the road. Entrance is in the central bay of its three bay east gable end, flanked by two 6/6 double hung sash windows. A one-story shed-roof porch, supported by turned posts, shelters this gable end. There is one second-story 2/2 window centered in the gable end. The building is three bays deep on the north and south facades. There is a tall corbelled brick chimney between second and third bays on the south slope of the roof. A one-story one-bay-wide shed-roof addition has been constructed on the south facade. The building rests on a concrete foundation. It is covered with light green asbestos shingle and the apex of the gable end is sheathed with white vertical board. The roof is of asphalt shingle and has overhanging eaves.

Significance

The Old Cheltenham Store stood on the old road between Cheltenham and Woodyard. The building no longer stands, but just north of its site, and originally on the same property, stands a small vernacular dwelling which probably dates from the 1890's. John B. Pyles, superintendent of the House of Reformation, purchased this property in 1899. Early in the twentieth century, he built the small country store which served the nearby community until the 1920's and the construction of Crain Highway. John B. Pyles owned much of the property along the Cheltenham-Woodyard Road, and leased the dwellings to families who worked at the House of Reformation and at other places in the Cheltenham area. After Pyles' death his widow gave the tenants option to buy their dwellings; the old store was sold to the Werner family who converted it into a residence; it was demolished circa 1980, and has been replaced by a modular home. The dwelling which adjoined the store on the north was sold at the same time; for many years it was the home of the Quade family. The house has changed hands several times since then, and its appearance has changed over the years. Its simple front-gabled facade, however, makes it a noticeable landmark on the Cheltenham-Woodyard Road.

The Old Cheltenham Store stood on the old road between Cheltenham and Woodyard. The building no longer stands, but just north of its site, and originally on the same property, stands a small vernacular dwelling which probably dates from the 1890's. It is an example of a modest front-gable vernacular dwelling. In 1878, Robert Brooks purchased 7.45 acres of land out of the large Poplar Neck plantation; on the property at that time was the Cheltenham Post office.¹ Before the end of the century, however, the post office facility was relocated beside the railroad tracks (a short distance to the east) and Brooks' heirs sold the old property to John B. Pyles, superintendent of the House of Reformation.² Early in the twentieth century, Pyles built the small country store on his 7.45 acre property; operated by a storekeeper named May, it served the nearby community until the 1920's and the construction of Crain Highway. John B. Pyles owned much of the property along the Cheltenham-Woodyard Road, and leased the dwellings to families who worked at the House of Reformation/Boys Village and at other places in the Cheltenham area.³ After Pyles' death in 1936, his widow gave the tenants option to buy their dwellings. The old store was sold in 1946 to the Werner family who converted the store into a residence and have lived there ever since.⁴ This building was demolished circa 1980, and has been replaced by a modular home.

The dwelling which adjoined the store on the north was also sold at the same time. For many years it was the home of the Quade family, members of which worked at the House of Reformation. The east porch was constructed in the 1940's, and subsequently a one-story lean-to addition was built onto the south facade. The house has changed hands several times since then, and its appearance has changed over the years. Its simple front-gabled facade, however, makes it a noticeable landmark on the Cheltenham-Woodyard Road.
