George Waters House
Upper Hill
Private

c. 1890

The George Waters house, also known as the William Waters house, is a two-story, three-bay center hall frame dwelling that stands abandoned in the center of Upper Hill, Somerset County, Maryland. Two-over-two sash windows, a turned post front porch, and single flue brick stove chimneys place the date of construction during the last years of the nineteenth century. Due to the fire and its abandonment, the house has reached a serious level of disrepair and decay.

Chain of title research for this house and lot document unbroken Waters family ownership through much of the twentieth century. Robert H. Waters and his wife, Aurelia, conveyed title for the property to their son, George Waters, in September 1917.

The George Waters house is located at 8141 Upper Hill Road in the historic black community of Upper Hill, Somerset County, Maryland. The two-story, three-bay frame house faces west with the principal gable roof oriented on a north/south axis.

Estimated to date around 1880-1900, this two-story, three-bay center hall frame dwelling rests on a low brick pier foundation covered with sheet metal, and the exterior is clad with asbestos shingles over weatherboards. The steeply pitched gable roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Extending from the rear wall is a two-story service wing. The house has experienced a fire and is presently abandoned.

The west (main) elevation is a three-bay facade with a center entrance and flanking two-over-two sash windows. The first floor is sheltered by a cross-gabled front porch supported by turned porch posts. A knee wall partially encloses the porch. The second floor is lighted by three evenly spaced two-over-two sash windows. The steeply pitched roof is finished with extended eaves and boxed soffits. Rising through the roof are single flue brick stove chimneys finished with corbelled caps.

The north and south gable ends are largely alike with single two-over-two sash windows lighting the first and second floors. The gable ends are finished with extended eaves.

Attached to the back of the main block is a two-story, one-room plan kitchen wing served by an interior end brick stove chimney. The kitchen wing is extended by single story shed roofed additions.

The interior was not seen.
