DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Clarke Croft is a mid 19th century frame house of true one and one-half story height. It consists of two rooms, each with an interior chimney with an exposed back. The south mantel shelf had deep Greek ovolo moldings. The north room has a 6/6 sash window and a door in each side, east and west, and the south room has a door to the east and a 6/6 sash window to the west. The stair is along the central partition in the south room. The architraves consist of narrow beaded boards. The doors have six shallow panels. Two 3/3 sash windows light the half story on each side, east and west.

A porch supported by chamfered posts covers the south two bays of the west side. A one story kitchen adjoins the south side of the house. It has a door and window on each of the east and west sides and a door topped by a two light transom on the south. A hood protects the west side and a small porch covers the east. A single 4/4 sash dormer on the western roof slope and a six pane window in the gable end light the attic.

Three interesting frame outbuildings and a well complete the yard. One building appears to be a small barn, while another is a large shed. The third is a small storage building with an extended roof overhang to the south and a completely plastered interior with built in shelves.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Clarke Croft is a small vernacular dwelling which has little to distinguish it from other mid-19th century dwellings in Talbot County. Its one-half story with small low windows are a feature which many houses lost when being remodeled and made more convenient. This building is included to represent the vernacular form which has been forgotten from the rest of the survey. Basically the building is as it was when constructed or remodeled in the mid-19th century.
