

ABSTRACT

(R. Andrews 9-76)

Hager Hotel

Twentieth Century

43-45 South Potomac Street

Hagerstown

Washington County

The Hager Hotel building is important for its architecture and because it is an early twentieth century hotel structure which was erected when Hagerstown flourished as an important railroad center. The building is representative of the eclectic form of architecture which was popular in the United States in the early 1900s and which combined elements of older, accepted styles. In the facade (east side) of this building, the symmetry, quoins, and roof balustrade characteristic of the Georgian style are mixed with medieval battlements and Tudor influenced cornice and sculptural panels.

The hotel was probably erected for Domenico Ramacciotti (1871-19) who purchased the property in 1913 for $19,500. The building is referred to in the deeds as the Costello Hotel. The Ramacciotti family retained ownership of the hotel until 1957 when it was sold to the present owner.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE
The Hager Hotel stands at 43-45 South Potomac Street in Hagerstown, Washington County, and is located on the west side of the street in the southern half of the block formed by Public Square and Antietam Street. The structure is a circa 1913-1914, eclectic revival style, brick, hotel building which is four stories high and has a flat roof. It sits tight to the sidewalk and neighboring buildings and has two storerooms on the first floor and hotel rooms on the upper stories. The facade (east side) is original on the upper three stories and has mid to late twentieth century fronts on the ground floor. The upper three levels of the facade are symmetrically arranged and have centered balconies flanked by two columns of tripartite bay windows. The facade is terminated with a closed balustrade above a rather flat cornice and the bay windows are crowned with medieval type battlements. The exterior is constructed of tan colored bricks and has Colonial Revival type quoins along the outer edges. The windows of the tripartite bays have double-hung, wooden sashes with multiple lights over a single light. Each bay window group has a scultural panel above the top floor, centered window. The building appears to be structurally sound.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Hager Hotel building is important for its architecture and because it is an early twentieth century hotel structure which was erected when Hagerstown flourished as an important railroad center. The building is representative of the eclectic form of architecture which was popular in the United States in the early 1900's and which combined elements of older, accepted styles. In the facade (east side) of this building, the symmetry, quoins and roof balustrade characteristic of the Georgian style are mixed with medieval battlements and Tudor influenced cornice and sculptural panels.

The hotel was probably erected for Domenico Ramacciotti (1871-19) who purchased the property in 1913 for $19,500 (Deed Book 142, p. 320). The building is referred to in the deeds as the Costello Hotel. The Ramacciotti family retained ownership of the hotel until 1957 when it was sold to the present owner.

The building plays an important visual role in the streetscape of this block radiating out of Public Square. The rectangular lines of the facade contribute much to the variety of patterns which make up the street facades and harmoniously contrasts with the curvilinear designs of neighboring late nineteenth century structures.

Describe and evaluate the physical characteristics of the property, its integrity, and its significance within the context of the historic district (or individually for preliminary determinations of individual listings).

Constructed c. 1900, the four story, masonry Hager Hotel is distinguished by its wooden bays, ironwork balconies and classical detailing. The first floor contains two retail spaces. The top three floors consist of a 42-room hotel. Interior organization is straight forward, with wide corridors dividing each floor and four common bathrooms per floor. Much of the original woodwork, including mantels, remain on the upper floors, however the first floor has been substantially altered both on the exterior and in the interior.

The Hagerstown Commercial Core Historic District is an intact grouping of late 19th and early 20th century buildings which reflect a period of rapid growth in Hagerstown. Always the Commercial center for the surrounding counties, during the late 19th century, Hagerstown became a leading manufacturing city and major railroad center in Maryland. A number of substantial hotels in the district were constructed to serve the travelers and businessmen. The Hager Hotel contributes to the streetscape which consists of similar, three and four story brick commercial buildings.
