DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

"Rockland Farm" is located at 728 Antietam Drive in Hagerstown in the village of Fiddlersburg or Security. It is situated on the east side of the road on a rise of ground above the Marsh Run. It faces west.

The structure is a two-story, three-bay stone dwelling with white trim. An arched date stone set in the gable of the south elevation is inscribed with the year 1773.

The walls are constructed of coursed local fieldstone at the front elevation and rubble stones at the side and rear walls. A low watertable a short distance above ground level extends along the front elevation. Decorative masonry work associated with the exterior of the house includes segmental stone arches over most window openings and over the date plaque.

Windows which retain their original framing have wide wooden members secured with pegs. First story openings at the front elevation contain nine-over-nine pane double-hung sashes. Other windows contain nine-over-six light sashes.

The main entrance is located in the north bay of the front elevation. The doorway is framed similarly to the windows with pegged joining. A narrow four-light transom is present over the door.

A modern shed roof entrance porch is present at the main entrance and a one-story porch extends along the east or rear elevation. The roof extends beyond the end walls of the house and is covered with chanel groove sheet metal. The eaves boxing is finished with a course of simple molding. An interior chimney of brick with several courses of corbeling at its top is present just north of the center of the house.

The interior of the house is divided into three rooms and a stair hall. Interior doors have six raised panels trimmed with plain quarter round molding. Most doors are held with long strap hinges.

The house is in good condition and is located on a tract containing .61 acres. Behind the house is a log outbuilding and a one-and-a-half story stone dwelling, built over a spring. The stone dwelling is considered in form WA-I-117.

SPECIFIC DATES 1773 date stone BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The area of significance of this house is its architecture. Dated 1773, it is one of the few substantiated examples of Washington County's 18th century architecture. Thus in addition to its own architectural merit, this house provides a good standard with which to compare other examples.

The "Rockland Farm" has several features which appear to be associated with pre-19th century buildings in the Cumberland Valley and Western Maryland. Arched window heads, a prominent feature of this building have been found on examples dating from before 1790. The presence of the watertable is another early feature as are the wide pegged window frames.

The central chimney probably reflects early German building traditions. Documented examples of Washington County's 18th century central chimney houses have been traced to settlers of German origin.

This house is said to have been built by a member of the Funk family, probably Henry Funk. It is apparently located on part of a land grant called "Locust Bottom," containing 1,081 acres which was surveyed for H. Funk on August 24, 1758. In 1802, parts of "Locust Bottom," "Simmon's Racht" and "Strife Found" were surveyed into a plot which was renamed "Rockland Farm." Another house, quite similar to this one, also built by a member of the Funk family and dated 1774 is located in Security (WA-I-124), a short distance south of Rockland Farm.

Funk-Davis House
Interior Description

The first story interior of this house is divided into three rooms and an entrance/stair area. The front door opens into a small enclosed room with a primitive stair which rises against the north wall of the house. A rough square newel and pairs of balusters support a massive hand rail with curved sides. Interior doors have six raised panels trimmed with quarter round and are held with strap hinges terminating with heart shaped end pieces. Door frames are also trimmed with quarter round molding. A door from the entranceway leads into a parlor with a fireplace located against its inside wall. The fireplace mantel is trimmed with cove molding and decorative reeding. Evidence in the ceiling suggests that the parlor may have been divided nearly in half by an east to west partition. Behind the parlor and the stair area are two rooms, one of which was the kitchen. It appears to have had a fireplace which was set against the parlor fireplace and which shared the same flue. In the southeast corner of the first story is a small room with a built-in cupboard with fluted trim and ogee cornice molding. It is fitted under the exposed summer beam which can be seen in both of the rear rooms.

The interior woodwork of this house does not seem to be consistent as evidenced by the rough appearing stair which contrasts with the rather fine cupboard and other interior detail. The mantel is of a type associated with later 18th and early 19th century houses in Washington County. Additional detailed study of this house is needed before these interior elements can be dated firmly.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This house, probably built by a member of the Funk family, is located at 726 Antietam Drive in the village of Security or Fiddlersburg, about two miles east of Hagerstown in Washington County, Md. It is situated over a spring just west of Marsh Run and a short distance east of Antietam Drive and faces south.

The structure is a one-and-a-half story, four-bay stone and frame dwelling which has been partially covered with white roughcast or stucco.

The walls of the section comprising the two eastern bays are constructed of roughly coursed local fieldstone. The two western bays are of frame construction sheathed with wooden siding.

Doors and windows appear to be spaced rather evenly in the walls. Openings in the stone section have wide wooden framing secured with pegs and trimmed with quarter round molding. All windows have six-over-six pane double hung sashes although those in the frame section are held within quite narrow frames.

All entrances to the house are located in the south or front elevations. At the first story all openings but the west bay are doors. All three entrances are simple in appearance. Two of the doorways have transoms. They are framed similarly to the windows. Below the main story are openings in the north and south elevations of the ground level. The spring emerges from an outlet in the east wall of the lower story of the house.

Included under the main roof span is a double porch extending the length of the west elevation. It is suported by chsmfered posts.

The roof is covered with sheet metal and terminates with a plain barge set directly against the end walls. A small gable roofed dormer with two-over-two pane sashes extends from each slope of the roof. A brick flue is located inside the east gable end with fireplaces in the basement and main story. A smaller brick chimney is located at the jointure of the frame and stone sections. Plain boxing finishes the eaves.

The house is in fair condition and stands on a tr-ct containing 0.31 acre. Just west of the house is a two-story stone dwelling dated 1773. It is described in form WA-I-116.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The area of significance of this house is its architecture. It is an example of Washington County's early vernacular building in stone. Situated directly over a spring, the fwelling reflects 18th and early 19th century building traditions. A number of early stone dwellings in the county are constructed over springs.

This house is said by the owner to have been an early settler's cabin or fort. Its actual building date has not been documented. The structure was probably built by a member of the Funk family. It is apparently located on part of a land grant called "Locust Bottom," containing 1,081 acres which was surveyed for H. Funk on August 24, 1758. In 1802, parts of "Locust Bottom," "Simmon's Racht" and "Strife Found" were surveyed into a plot which was renamed "Rockaldn Farm." The property was in the Funk family until 1827.

Until 1966, this property included the 1773 stone house (WA-I-116) located immediately west of this structure.
