Description:

This small log house is a one story, three bay structure covered with T-III siding. Windows have been enlarged and modern trim has been added. The door and trim around it are also recent replacements. The entrance is located in the center bay. A frieze band is trimmed with brackets. The finishes of this house are so recent that it is impossible to estimate its age from a view of the exterior.

A house is shown on this site in the 1877 Atlas map of Funkstown as owned by M.W. Harman.
