LOUIS GOLDSTEIN HOUSE
(Late 19th Century)
Dares Beach
Private

This two story frame house faces the Chesapeake Bay to the east. The building appears to consist of a three bay house with a one-bay addition to the north under a continuous roofline. A large interior brick chimney heats the south end, while a smaller brick stove-flue chimney appears at the addition's north end. The house may include a side-hall, single-parlor plan.

This two story frame house faces the Chesapeake Bay to the east. The building appears to consist of a three bay house with a one bay addition to the north under a continuous roofline. A large interior brick chimney heats the south end, while a smaller brick stove flue chimney appears at the addition's north end. The house may include a side-hall, single-parlor plan.

Two shed-roofed additions project from the southwest corner. The entrance appears at the north end of the original facade. One over one windows, probably not original, light the house.

Standing-seam metal covers the roof. Asbestos shingles sheath the walls.
