CHERRYFIELDS
Drayden
Private

circa 1818-1824 and circa 1835

A two-story brick house was built at Cherryfields between 1818 and 1824. Oriented to the north and south, it had a single parlor, side hall plan and a frame section, possibly of an earlier date. A number of outbuildings also stood on the property during this period.

This house burned in 1835 and was then rebuilt in a completely different form, incorporating three of the original walls. The floor plan of the rebuilt structure consists of a double parlor, side hall plan oriented to the east and west. It also has a frame wing which is contemporary with the rebuilding. It originally housed a kitchen and dining room, and was much altered circa 1940 when the kitchen was completely rebuilt.

The scanty interior detail at Cherryfields is original and includes chairrail, mantels, paneled reveals and aprons under the ground floor windows.

The rebuilding of Cherryfields was carried out under the ownership of Colonel William Coad.
