DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Travers house is located on Morris Neck, overlooking Beckwith Creek. It is the earliest existing house on Morris Neck, having been built during the eighteenth century and later receiving an extension to the south. The main part of the house is three bays long and one and one-half story tall built above a brick basement. On both gables are large brick chimneys with free-standing stacks. The door has sidelights and transom and the windows, on both the first story and in the dormers have 6/6 sash. To the south is a porch on the west side and a one and one-half story, one bay long extension, with 9/6 sash, connected to the lower, one story kitchen. The latter has an exterior chimney. Aluminum siding has been installed on all walls, including the small shed on the end of the kitchen which houses the furnace.

The floor plan consists of a central stair hall with two rooms, with two rooms connected to the kitchen. In the two latter rooms are small stairs to the rooms above. All of the major portion of the house was remodeled in the 1850-60 period and resembles that portion of Spocot built in the same period. Even the floor boards of the second story were replaced except in the cuddy areas.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Travers House is the earliest existing house on Morris Neck and as such is of great importance. There are also very few structures in the Neck District which can be definitely attributed to the eighteenth century.

It is called the Home Place of the Travers family but no research has been made readily available on the property or its owner. Mr. Thomas Travers who lived on the farm from the mid-19th century until his death in 1922, was a merchant, farmer, and director of the National Bank of Cambridge.
