

109 Goldsborough Street
Easton, Maryland 21601

T-435
Mid Nineteenth Century

Goldsborough Street is notable for its many fine nineteenth century townhouses; 109 is one of those built in the middle of the century. The two-and-a-half story frame building is unusually wide with a broad front gable decorated with a projecting oriel window and an infill of imbricated shingles.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This building stands on the north side of Goldsborough Street facing south. It is one of four mid-nineteenth century houses which remain on this block which is now at the edge of the downtown commercial district.

This frame house is two and a half stories in height and unusually wide, four bays, for a town house of the mid-nineteenth century. This is a L-plan type building, set with its side to the street. It is covered with a gable roof and has a front gable facing the street. The building is covered with German ship lap siding painted white; the asphalt roof is black.

The front gable of the house is three bays in width. The wide gable is covered with imbricated shingles and has a small, three-sided oriel window. The windows of the first and second floors are not evenly spaced but are placed to accommodate the position of the interior rooms. One over one sashes are used in each window; double windows are found in the east bay on both floors. The main entrance is in the west bay of the projecting front gable; the double entrance doors have clear glass panes in their upper half portion. There is a three-part window with two over two sashes in the east bay of the first floor.

The west bay of the house is covered by a gable roof. A small jerkin dormer is found in the center of the bay in the south slope of the roof. First and second floor windows, also centered, have one over one sashes.

A one-story porch with projecting entrance bay covers the main entrance and extends across the width of the west front bay. At the entrance the porch has a projecting pedimented pavilion and a flight of three lowsteps. Imbricated shingles decorate the tympanum. Turned posts are used in a group of three at the corners of the porch pavilion. They are connected by curved decorative brackets which form an arch between the posts. The porch railing is a simple one of iron.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This building is not particularly distinguished for its architecture but is important for its place in the street-scape of Goldsborough Street. After the first quarter of the nineteenth century, Goldsborough was selected by the prosperous merchants of Easton as a desirable location for their residences. Houses were constructed along the street from that time until the end of the century; consequently they display a great variety of styles and forms. The street itself has developed a distinct character: large frame dwellings set close to the street, tall trees, and deep back yards, many with barns or outbuildings.
